SYNOPSIS

Paul Anderson, a young American, with an inclination towards travel on the sea meets a most remarkable adventure. He falls in with a wonderful little character, by name Imagination, who, on account of Paul's many good traits rewards him by a trip to the extraordinary land of Lilliputania. Some idea of the exciting adventures Paul had in Lilliputania can be formed when we tell you that a full grown Lilliputanian measured but three American inches in height, and everything in the entire country was just as small in proportion.

Not only the younger children, but the older girls and boys as well, will delight in this story. It is by no means a fairy tale, as providing it were possible for such a land to exist, everything that happens in the action of the story is quite possible. The amusing and exciting situations arising from the vast difference between the size of Paul and the residents of Lilliputania are interesting to a degree. Never since the famous "Gulliver's Travels" has such a book been written.

The illustrations cleverly portray the chief incidents of the story, and when one has finished this remarkable book, one sighs with disappointment at its termination, and looks forward with pleasant expectations to the promised sequel

14 I behaved myself as though he had been my friend or brother: I bowed down heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother.
15 But in mine adversity they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together: yea, the abjects gathered themselves together against me, and I knew it not; they did tear me, and ceased not:

Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.
7 For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself.
8 For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's.
9 For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.

CAMBRIDGE BIBLICAL ENCYCLOPEDIA

These Bibles contain the Biblical Encyclopedia, based on the Cambridge Companion to the Bible, the work of the most eminent scholars at the Cambridge University, the object of which is to provide Sunday-school teachers and other students with a concise book of reference to the Bible.

In the Encyclopedia much useful matter has been compressed into a small space and the arrangement of helps in alphabetical form will be found most convenient for the purpose of ready reference.

CAMBRIDGE CONCORDANCE

included in all Cambridge Teachers' Bibles, is most practicable and contains all important references.

CAMBRIDGE CENTRE-COLUMN REFERENCES

Have been re-edited and revised throughout and in this edition full use has been made of the late Prebendary Scrivener's invaluable work on the References which was first published in the Cambridge Paragraph Bible.

CAMBRIDGE INDIA PAPER

For whiteness, opaqueness, thinness and toughness, the new Cambridge India Paper is generally declared by experts to be the equal of, if not superior to, any thin paper now used in Bibles.

ASHERAH (of which the plural is Asherim or Asheroth), either a living tree or a tree-like pole, set up as an object of worship, being symbolical of the female or productive principle in nature. Every Phœnician altar had an ashĕrah near it; in A.V. the word is often translated "green trees" or "grove." This "nature worship" became associated with gross immorality, and so the practice of setting up asheroth was forbidden by Hebrew prophets, Dt. 16. 21; cf. Nu. 25. 3; Judg. 2. 11—13; 1 S. 7. 3, 4; 1 K. 11. 5; Is. 17. 8; Mi. 5. 12 ff.

ASSUR, Ezr. 4. 2; Ps. 83. 8, R.V. has Assyria.

ASSYRIA and BABYLONIA were the two great Eastern empires before which all the old states of Syria and Palestine fell. We learn their history partly from the Bible narrative and also from contemporary monuments written in cuneiform characters and recently deciphered.

Babylonia or Shinar (Gen. 10. 10) is the alluvial country on the lower course of the Euphrates and Tigris, of which Babel or Babylon was the chief city. Assyria, or Ashur, occupied the Tigris valley to the north of Babylonia. Its centre lay on the left bank of the Tigris, where the great city of Nineveh stood, opposite Mosul. Babylon and Nineveh were long rivals, but they had a common civilisation, of which the southern alluvium was the original home. Their language was Semitic, but in the southern country the Semites seem to have been pre-

CHRISTIAN LIFE TEACHERS' BIBLE

The five great themes, SIN, CHRIST, FAITH, LOVE and SALVATION, may be said to form the heart of all Bible truth. The choicest passages referring to these subjects have been brought together from all parts of the Bible, each subject in its own color (as noted below) and placed in the front of the book.

By orderly steps the reader can now follow the very language of Scripture as it first pictures SIN (scarlet) and then puts over against it CHRIST (gold) and Faith (blue) on man's part, leading to LOVE (purple) and SALVATION (green).

ACTS 18

9 Then spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace:
10 For I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city.
11 And he continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.
12 ¶ And when Găl'lĭ-ō was the deputy of A-chā'ĭa, the Jews made insurrection with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgment seat,
13 Saying, This fellow persuadeth men to worship God contrary to the law.
14 And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Găl'lĭ-o said unto the Jews, If it were a matter of wrong or wicked lewdness, O ye Jews, reason would that I should bear with you
15 But if it be a question of words and names, and of your law, look ye to it; for I will be no judge of such matters.
16 And he drave them from the judgment seat.
but he himself entered into the synagogue, and reasoned with the Jews.
20 When they desired him to tarry longer time with them, he consented not;
21 But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this feast that cometh in Je-ru'să-lĕm: but I will return again unto you, if God will. And he sailed from Eph'ĕ-sŭs.
22 And when he had landed at Cæsa-rē'a, and gone up, and saluted the church, he went down to An'tĭ-ŏch.
23 And after he had spent some time there, he departed, and went over all the country of Gă-lā'tĭa and Phrȳg'ĭ-a in order, strengthening all the disciples.
24 ¶ And a certain Jew named A-pŏl'los, born at Al-ĕx-ăn'drĭ-a, an eloquent man, and mighty in the scriptures, came to Eph'ĕ-sŭs.
25 This man was instructed in the way of the Lord; and being fervent in the spirit, he spake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptism of John.
26 And he began to speak

That these Sentences may be used on any other occasion of Public Worship, when the alms of the People are to be received.

REMEMBER the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive. Acts xx. 35.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. St. Matt. v. 16.

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. St. Matt. vii. 21.

Zacchæus stood forth, and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have done any wrong to any man, I restore fourfold. St. Luke xix. 8.

Who goeth a warfare at any time of his own cost? Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? Or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? 1 Cor. ix. 7.

GOD, that madest earth and heaven,
Darkness and light;
Who the day for toil hast given,
For rest the night:
May Thine angel-guards defend us,
Slumber sweet Thy mercy send us,
Holy dreams and hopes attend us,
This livelong night.

2 Guard us waking, guard us sleeping,
And, when we die,
May we in Thy mighty keeping,
All peaceful lie:
When the last dread call shall wake us,
Do not Thou, our God, forsake us,
But to reign in glory take us
With Thee on high.

Helpful Selling Points for Bagster and Cambridge Bibles

The World's Best Seller in the World's Best Binding

All that is best in Bibles has for generations been identified with the Cambridge University Press, of England, and Samuel Bagster & Sons, London, but it remained for James Pott & Co., to add the final touch of perfection in the which gives a longer life to these Bibles than any others.

"TUBEBACK," UNBREAKABLE BACK PATENT BINDING

Only Bagster and Cambridge Bibles have this valuable feature, and yet they cost no more than inferior kinds which lack it.

¶ When you sell a Bagster or Cambridge Bible it means you supply the very best workmanship in binding, paper, printing, etc., and the very latest up-to-date improvements; the best testimonial to their merit being their steadily increasing sale.

¶ The Bible is more than a book; it is a whole library—the most appropriate and acceptable present that could possibly be made to a relative, friend, Sunday School supt., teacher or scholar.

¶ Bagster and Cambridge Bibles excel in the following points:

Paper—The white Bible paper used in the popular priced editions, and the genuine India paper, in the better qualities, are the finest obtainable.

Types—Are always the largest and clearest possible for the size of the Bible.

Leathers—Only the best and strongest are used, comprising sheepskin, cowhide, Levant and genuine sealskin, also our famous Keratol, or imitation leather.

¶ The best constructed Bibles in the world are the Bagster and Cambridge. They are sold on their merits —not on tradition.

¶ In the binding of any ordinary Bible the back is the weakest point —in the Bagster and Cambridge Bibles it is the STRONGEST. The test of superiority is by comparison.

¶ To sell a Bible easily—open a Bagster or Cambridge Bible wide —show the beautiful flat opening—(no strain on the leaves.) While wide open turn the Bible over—show the perfect round of the back. (no creasing or breaking)—simply state: "This is the new patent 'Unbreakable Back' Binding—we guarantee that the book will not break or crease in the back when opened and will always open flat—BAGSTER and CAMBRIDGE BIBLES alone have this guarantee."

BAGSTER—The pioneers of the present form of Bible.

In the year 1812, Samuel Bagster issued the first Pocket Reference Bible; the first Center-Column Reference Bible.

In the year 1816, the first Bible in Flexible Binding was made by Bagster.

In the year 1828, the first Bible printed on India paper was issued by Bagster.

Features now used by all other Bible Houses

BAGSTER—The Inventors of the over-lapping or Divinity Circuit Binding. Originated by Bagster in 1865. Now adopted by all Bible Publishers the world over.

There is a Best in Bibles as in other things—why not get the Best?

ISHAM, NORMAN M., and BROWN, ALBERT F.

Early Connecticut Houses. A historical and architectural study. Cloth, square octavo, with map, 7 plates and 115 illustrations. $10.00 net.

"There is a completeness of record, a successful attempt to tell the whole story as far as it is important it should be told, upon which it is hard to comment in terms too favorable. Each house is presented in a small carefully made drawing, mainly in outline, without the slightest attempt at artistic effect; and the more artistic on that account, as revealing the work of architectural art without the interference of the draftsman's fancies. It is clear that these little drawings (stated to have been made with the aid of photographs) and the plans and explanatory sections are as trustworthy as it is possible to make drawings of the kind."—The Nation.

The Hispanic Society of America

G. P. Putnam's Sons of New York and London have been appointed publishing agents for The Hispanic Society of America; and they are prepared to fill orders for the series of publications issued by the Society.

The Hispanic Society, the organization of which was completed in 1904, has for its purpose, in addition to the establishment of a free public library, a museum, and an educational institution, the advancement of the study of the Spanish and Portuguese languages and of the literature and history of the countries wherein Spanish and Portuguese are spoken.

The publications thus far issued by The Hispanic Society comprise about one hundred titles. Among the more important works included in this list, exclusive of those the editions of which are exhausted, is the authoritative Spanish edition of Don Quixote de la Mancha. It is planned to complete the work in seven volumes, the first three of which are now in readiness.

Illustrated Catalogues of the Works of certain great artists, such as Sorolla, Zuloaga, etc.

Reproductions of maps of historic importance, such as the Genoese World Map of 1457; and of Spanish texts in facsimile.

Publications of literary criticism, as those of Ramon Menendez Pidal, and James Fitzmaurice-Kelley.

The Revue Hispanique devoted to a study of the languages, the literatures, and the history of the Castilian, Catalan, and Portuguese countries, —six issues annually.

The Bibliographie Hispanique, an annual catalogue of books and articles of importance in the Hispanic field.

Copies of the General Catalogue of the publications of the Society and announcements of the issues of each season will be sent on application.

A FOREWORD

In our new catalog books for children take a foremost place. In this field we have developed a class of literature that definitely means something in the life of the reader—books that not only delight the eye, but by their lively, wholesome, exhilarating stories and verses, bring joy to the fresh, clean mind of the child.

To the list that has already won distinction in this class, the new books are happy additions. Ivanhoe and Swiss Family Robinson, of the well-known "Windermere Series," The Kinderkins, by Frances Margaret Fox, Little Sisters to the Camp Fire Girls, by E. A. Watson Hyde, The Peter Patter Book, by Leroy F. Jackson, The Merrymakers, by Louise Ayres Garnett, Doctor Rabbit and Ki-Yi Coyote, by Thomas Hinkle, The Three Little Pigs, and other books, illustrated by such artists as Milo Winter and Blanche Fisher Wright, speak for the character and quality of the new offerings, and the pleasure and profit in store for the young reader.

However, children's books are not the only attractions of the new season. In the Miscellaneous section grown-ups will be drawn to "The Household Economy Series" and the new pictorial army and navy books. The latter—U. S. Army, Facts and Insignia—with its wealth of information and color work, and the U. S. Navy, splendidly pictured in half tones from photographs, are exceptionally interesting. In the Atlas and Guide divisions will be found books of reference and maps that are now so necessary in the home or place of business.

There is no frigate like a book
To take us leagues away
Nor any courser like a page
Of prancing poetry.

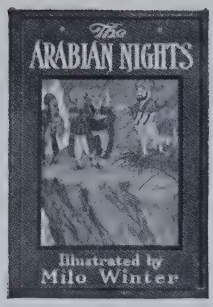
For Boys and Girls and Little Children



THE WINDERMERE SERIES

The Windermere Series, a new and interesting series of books, is of the best literary quality and a character suited both to the perceptions of growing children and to the interest of adults who still remember with pleasure the hours with Brothers Grimm, Dean Swift, and Nathaniel Hawthorne.

The octavo size is admirably adapted to the display of the beautiful coloring and draftsmanship of the illustrations, and the clear, clean type pages, uniform throughout the series, add to the beauty as well as to the legibility of the books.

This list will be supplemented from time to time by similar publications of the same form at the same price. Recommended by the A. L. A. 1914.

Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 36 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

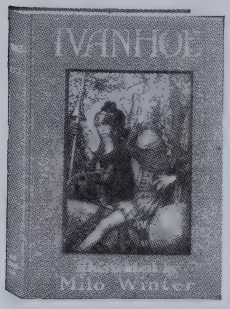
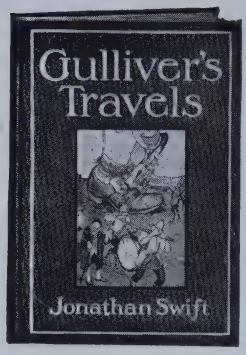
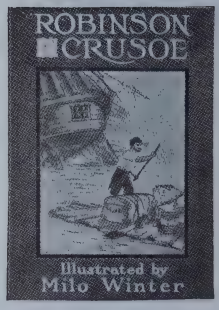
Concerning Milo Winter, the illustrator of this beautiful edition of a book dear to all children, the Spring number of "Poet Lore" (Boston) had this to say: "With the exception of Maxfield Parrish, Mr. Winter is quite the best American illustrator of juveniles we have. His work shows at once imagination and an ability to handle line and color that is unusual for an American; for it is in these qualities that English illustration is so far ahead of ours."

Fairy Tales. THE GRIMM BROTHERS. Illustrated with twelve full pages in color and six wash drawings by Hope Dunlap.
Cloth, large 8vo, 275 pages, wt. 32 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 32 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

The steady demand for such old-time favorites, coupled with the general desire for books that display all the beauties of modern workmanship, has led to the publication of this particularly well-illustrated edition. It includes twelve full-page pictures in color and six in black by Hope Dunlap, done with fine imagination and technical skill, which will further endear to readers young and old a book already strongly intrenched in their affections.







Gulliver's Travels. JONATHAN SWIFT. Illustrated with twelve full pages in color by Milo Winter.
Cloth, large 8vo, 344 pages, wt. 34 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 34 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

Because of the extraordinary work done by Milo Winter in illustrating the well-known scenes, particular attention is called to this edition of a book that needs neither introduction nor commendation. With striking originality of conception and with thoroughly modern ideas as to the most effective handling of his materials, he has produced a set of pictures which alone makes the book a desirable acquisition.

Ivanhoe. SIR WALTER SCOTT. Illustrated with fourteen full pages in color by Milo Winter.
Cloth, large, 8vo, 650 pages, wt. 40 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 40 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

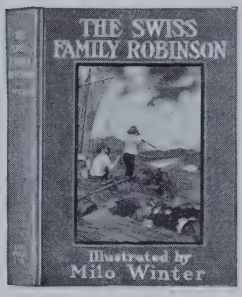
The great romance in whose graphic word pictures thousands have relived the times of the Black Prince and the Knights Templar comes to the young reader with a fresh accession of interest. Through the art of Milo Winter the characters reappear in all the glow of color and knightly glamour that Sir Walter himself loved and would have rejoiced to see pictured.

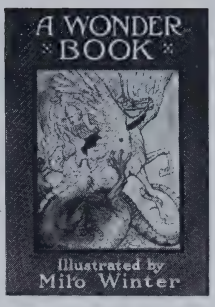
Robinson Crusoe. DANIEL DEFOE. Illustrated with sixteen full pages in color by Milo Winter.
Cloth, large 8vo, 383 pages, wt. 38 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 38 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

This edition is certain to commend itself to the oncoming generation. It would seem impossible to make a new story out of so old a classic, yet Milo Winter, through the charm of his illustrations, succeeds in doing this. For the first time the book has been adequately pictured.

Swiss Family Robinson, The. JOHANN RUDOLPH WYSS. Illustrated with fourteen full pages in color by Milo Winter.
Cloth, large 8vo, 441 pages, wt. 48 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 48 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

The boy who fails to make the acquaintance of the Swiss Family Robinson misses a big part of his rightful heritage. Nowhere can he find in a company of boys such freshness, variety and exhilaration of experience as came to the famous family when shipwrecked on an uninhabited island in the South Seas. In its new Windermere dress, and with brilliant illustrations by Milo Winter, the book brings redoubled interest to old readers and to young alike.





Tanglewood Tales. NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Illustrated with ten full pages in color and six in line drawings by Milo Winter.
Cloth, large 8vo, 283 pages, wt. 32 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 32 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

In this new edition of an old favorite, special care has been given to the illustrations. In ten full-page colored pictures and six in black and white, Milo Winter has preserved the classic spirit of the scenes while employing a more realistic style than has been attempted in these stories. The pictures have vigor, variety, and humor, and give a vivid and convincing impression of the ancient heroes and their feats.

Treasure Island. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. With fourteen full-page illustrations in color by Milo Winter.
Cloth, large 8vo, 268 pages, wt. 30 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 34 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

To say the new thing about "Treasure Island" is, at this late day, impossible. In literature, it remains the crowned classic of the sheerly adventurous. It may be remarked, however, that in this edition Milo Winter outdoes all former efforts and proves himself the equal of the greatest European illustrators.

Wonder Book, A. NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Illustrated with fourteen full pages in color and two in black by Milo Winter.
Cloth, large 8vo, 254 pages, wt. 28 oz. . . . . Net $1.50 K
Library edition, re-enforced binding, wt. 28 oz. . . . . Net $1.65 K

A book that never fails to make a place for itself on the shelves of all book lovers. In this new edition the work will be found in keeping with the best that modern book making has achieved. There are fourteen full-page colored pictures and two illustrations in black by Milo Winter, fine examples of the skill and color sense that have won for this young artist ever-widening recognition in his field.

The reading of boys and girls is prophetic. The boy craves tales of action and adventure; the girl wants the ideal—she wants characters whom she can admire.

CLARA C. HERBERT.

"A tale that looms in graphic quality"

Gunner Depew

By Albert N. Depew

An American Sailor in the service of France

THIS thrilling story of trench and battleship is one of the most amazing that has come out of the Great War. Gunner Depew was one of those adventurous young Americans who went forth to battle against the Huns long before the United States "went in." The story he tells is packed with fighting and adventure on many fronts—in the trenches of Flanders—on the sea at Gallipoli. It is written in the colloquial language of an American sailor boy who has lived through extraordinary adventures and tells them with inimitable verve and directness.

The most thrilling and gripping of all war books

Reviewers have bestowed high praise on this remarkable sailor story. Gunner Depew's war career is unique. He is one of the few Americans who have lived through the misery and brutality of German prison camps. He describes what he has seen and what he has suffered in the hands of the Hun. His story is one to be read by every American for its lesson and its warning.

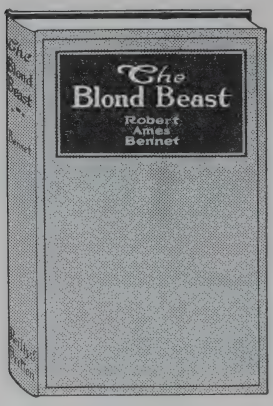
A war novel of epic sweep and proportion



The Blond Beast

By Robert Ames Bennet

Author of
"For the White Christ,"
"Into the Primitive," etc.

A NOVEL of the Great War that tells a thrilling story of American youth—a story big with romance and love—vibrant with a fine, outstanding Americanism.

With the epic sweep that characterizes the great war novels of Sienkiewicz, Robert Ames Bennet has portrayed in convincing and dramatic fashion the great invasion battles from Charleroi to the Marne—has translated into glowing pages the spirit and heroism, the poetry and horror of the battlefields. It is a vivid picture that he presents of the apostles of frightfulness and hate as they have written themselves down in atrocity and human life.

War—its thrills and heroisms and splendors

The Blond Beast is a big, thrilling, patriotism-inspiring novel that will make a deep impression on the minds of Americans to-day. It is a story that grips and holds from the first page to the last—a story that shines with the glory of sacrifice, of heroism, of indomitable human courage.

12mo. Eye-catching jacket in colors. Red cloth binding stamped in gold. 146 pp. $1.50 net.

"Myles Muredach"

Authorship now revealed as that of the Rt. Rev. Francis C. Kelley, D. D.

WITH this popular story, which has already achieved a wide sale, a distinguished author-prelate makes his appearance in the ranks of American novelists. Charred Wood is Monsignor Kelley's first novel, but it might well be his tenth, for it is a fascinating story in which the elements of suspense and mystery are blended in striking fashion.

The very first paragraph of the book starts the story off. Out of a mysterious hollow tree, the heroine steps forth straight into Mark Griffith's heart. Mark did not know her, but he wanted to—ardently. And then just when he has met her and knows that he loves her, mystery enters and Mark discovers that a detective is on her trail. That was only the beginning of the maze. From chapter to chapter, the suspense accumulates and the mystery deepens until the surprising dénouement. And it is a real surprise.

Something a little deeper than mystery

Monsignor Kelley has written a novel that the most hardened consumer of romances will read with intense interest. It is a love story of singular beauty and charm that lifts one from the life of an American town into the network of international intrigue. And crisscrossing the main story, there is Father Murray's own private little mystery, which deserves a story by itself. In an intimate but unobtrusive way, the author gives an interesting picture of a side of the Church seldom revealed.

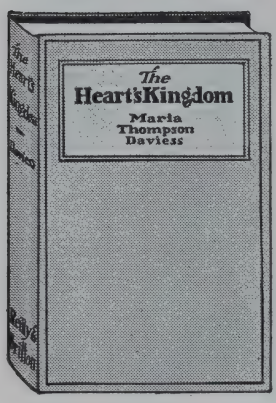
Showing New Power and Insight



The Heart's Kingdom

By MARIA THOMPSON DAVIESS
Author of
"The Daredevil"
"The Melting of Molly"

THE elements of humor and of plot interest have always distinguished the work of the author of "The Melting of Molly," but to that she has added a new insight into human nature that makes The Heart's Kingdom a distinctly worth-while book. It goes down deep into the hearts of men—and women particularly—and shows Miss Daviess as a student of life.

A Story of People as They Are

It is not a problem story, but the issues involved are true and abiding and surely vital. It is as romantic as "Molly." It is as clean-cut in its analysis of life as the "still, small voice."

Miss Daviess has made her audience laugh. She will do it again in The Heart's Kingdom. The story will do more: it will make readers think—and thrill.

A Book For a Big Audience

We are sure of the appeal of The Heart's Kingdom. It is a message and an interpretation, and it is a charming love story of the type no other author can tell so well. Its people are genuine. It is a story readers will talk over with appreciative discussion.

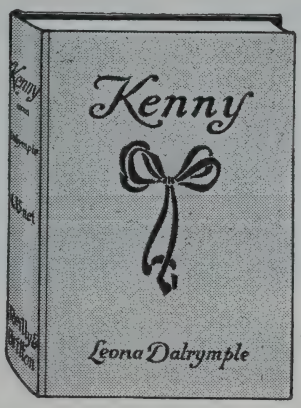
Brilliant Promise and Fulfillment

Kenny

A novel of distinctive power and certain touch — Kenny assures the author a high place in American letters.



Kenny

By

LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of

"Diane of the Green Van," "The Heart of the Christmas Pines," "Uncle Noah's Christmas Inspiration," etc.

THE talented author of "Diane of the Green Van," the "Ten Thousand Dollar Prize Novel," has in Kenny a story of unusual color and life. Its people are as knowable as next-door neighbors, yet as fascinating as fancy folk. Volatile, lovable Kenny himself, headstrong, changeable, vivacious, a living contradiction and enigma; Brian, sensible, dependable, wholly likable; Joan, of the gold brocade gown, as winsome a maid as ever stepped out of a daydream. A trio of breathing beings in a story of quaint charm and sentiment. A background of the Bohemia of studio life in New York on the one hand, of the woods and hills and winding streams of Craig farm on the other.

A story of a big love. A drama of self that was lost in sacrifice.

Written with all Miss Dalrymple's originality and individual style. A wealth of imagery and descriptive charm. Clever in dialog and keen analysis. Best of all, a story of human sympathies and significance that will hold unflagging interest through all its big moments.

A story you will feel a positive affection for. Kenny — the man and the book — will live with you.

When a Man's a Man

By HAROLD BELL WRIGHT

THE story combines the bigness and the virility of "The Winning of Barbara Worth" with the sweetness and simplicity of "The Shepherd of the Hills." Beneath the stirring scenes, the thrilling incidents of the adventurous life depicted, one feels always the enduring life forces of real men and women. When a Man's a Man is a strong story of the "unfenced country," where, to survive, a man must be a man.

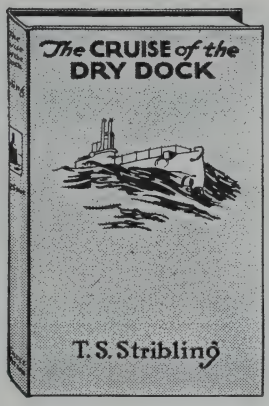
A Tale of the Sea—A Good One

The Cruise of the Dry Dock

By

T. S. STRIBLING



Not another "Treasure Island"—nor another Jules Verne—but it has a touch of both and a tang of reality and present-dayness that readers will like.

THERE doesn't breathe a man or boy but who will feel thrills chasing up and down his backbone—who will feel that backbone stiffen—as he reads this story of a good fight that was won against terrific odds.

Caradoc Smith, man of mystery, faced the biggest odds a man can face—himself. He fought a hard fight and won. And, strangely enough, it was through fighting others that he learned the strength to conquer himself.

A Story to Stir the Pulses

It is a sea story of an unusual sort. It will carry you back to elementals, to where men tackle life—and death—with bare hands and bare souls. Here is mystery that will make you fairly tingle with expectancy; and suspense that will hold you literally breathless. The author knows the sea, he knows the heart of a man, and, better still, he knows how to tell a gripping adventure story as few writers do. There is action all the way, but back of it all there is something essentially fine and worth while.

A Book to Delight the Eye

There are four spirited illustrations in full color from oil paintings by Herbert Morton Stoops. The pictorial jacket is in full color.

A Gift Edition of a Much-Given Book

Miss Minerva and William Green Hill

By Frances Boyd Calhoun

Well over a quarter of a million copies have been bought by the reading public that has been generous in its praise of a book that is wholly charming and delightful. The story is read and reread, borrowed and lent—a dozen readers to a book is a safe estimate.

The New Gift Edition

REQUESTS have kept coming in for a gift edition, both from dealers and the public. There is no doubt that "Miss Minerva" is given. Its spontaneous humor invites a sharing of its joys.

New plates, large type and handsome margins—a booky looking volume, with the original illustrations enlarged in keeping with the text. Every effort has been made to preserve the identity of the book—its old friends would resent any change.

This is "Miss Minerva's" tenth year. Each year the sale has grown.

There is a reason for such a record. Out of the well-springs of human interest and understanding and humor Mrs. Calhoun drew a tale that the reader takes back into his own childhood and finds genuine.

The comedy of kidhood pictured with a deft but sympathetic hand, and, side by side, the comedy of grown-ups. No one is too old or too young to appreciate "Billy," and his earnest efforts to "manage" Miss Minerva, spinster aunt who tried to make a girl of him.

Billy and the Major

A Sequel to "Miss Minerva and William Green Hill"

By Emma Speed Sampson

BILLY AND THE MAJOR: To those who have read "Miss Minerva" (and their number is legion), the title is one to conjure with. A million readers have enjoyed the delightful fun of the earlier story—have laughed over the piquant sayings and worldly wisdom of "Billy," and have followed with eager interest the Major's progress in his courtship of Miss Minerva. And then just when the Major's persistency is finally rewarded and Miss Minerva capitulates, the story closes.

"Billy and the Major" starts where "Miss Minerva" leaves off

The Major and Miss Minerva return from their "honeybeemoon," as Billy terms it—"for if'n they's honey they mus' be some bees"—and then the three of them settle down to a new existence—an existence quite as colorful and full of incident as the one Billy enjoyed in the days of Miss Minerva's spinsterhood. William Green Hill was happy. "Major Minerva," as he called the veteran warrior, and he were sworn allies. He saw unlimited possibilities in the new arrangement. And then when Wilkes Booth Lincoln suddenly appeared, muddy and bedraggled, Billy's cup of happiness was filled to overflowing.

Deliciously Humorous

The same drollery and comedy of childhood that made "Miss Minerva" so universally popular is to be found in Billy and the Major. Every lover of the earlier story will want to follow the pranks and innocent rascalities of the most delightful group of youngsters in the literature of our day.

A Novel of Worth-While Ideals

The Cracker Box School

By Elizabeth Miller Lutton

A STORY of the rejuvenation of a country school, a love story built around the uplift of a community by the work—the brains, the will, the soul—of one young woman—the "teacher."

Mrs. Lutton knows the "hearts of folks." Her story rings true and shows a deep sympathy with the aspirations of the average human being.

You'll follow with delight the difficulties and triumphs of the little school teacher; you'll feel as though you knew the boys and girls she helps—and their mothers and fathers. Every school teacher ought to read it—every parent with youngsters in school—every man or woman who believes in better social conditions.

A tale of frontier days in Michigan

Ne-bo-Shone

By Hal L. Cutler

PIONEERING days are a great and treasured national memory—a memory of the heroic struggles of the brave men who have built up our country. Here is a stirring story of frontier days in Michigan—of the dangers and hardships which were met and overcome by the pioneers who went out to subjugate the wilderness. Henry Allen—one of the most daring and venturesome of these men—lived with his little granddaughter in a cabin called "Ne-bo-Shone," an Indian word meaning "at the bend of the river." Around this sturdy character and his success in hewing out a career, the author has written a story that is intensely human and interesting.

Watch Your Weight!

Diet and Health

With Key to the Calories

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Chairman of Public Health
California Federation of Women's Clubs
Los Angeles District, 1916-18

Watch Your Weight!

Fat is ungainly, uncomfortable and decidedly unaesthetic at all times—but in war times it is particularly to be avoided. It has been roundly condemned by dieticians and medicos. But that is not all. Now food administration authorities and conservation experts come along, and more than half suggest that fat folk are unpatriotic! True, the experts try to soften the blow, but it has fallen. The eye of suspicion will continue to rest on the excessively large—but let them not fear. The remedy lies close at hand. It is

Diet and Health

With Key to the Calories.

In the early months of 1918, Dr. Peters published privately a little brochure that set all Los Angeles chuckling. The infection spread. Soon all California knew about it and chuckled too. This little brochure was the starting point of Diet and Health. Dr. Peters has revised and enlarged her work, and now we offer it to the book trade of America, believing that it will achieve the wide popularity it deserves.

A new kind of a book

Dr. Peters has written a genuinely worth-while and timely book—a book full of humor and personality and deft satire. Do not—we beg—get the idea that Diet and Health is a cut-and-dried, pedantic treatise. Far from it! It is a little, practical, common-sense volume of boiled-down information—inimitably presented and bristling with cleverness. While Dr. Peters has treated her subject in popular, diverting fashion, her book is thoroughly scientific. Fat folk will contract—and thin folk will expand—by following its good-humored advice. Highly endorsed by the medical fraternity.

Two books with a national appeal

Abraham Lincoln as a Man of Letters

By Luther Emerson Robinson, M. A.

Professor of English Literature in Monmouth College

Author of "A History of Illinois"

IN this book, Professor Robinson has performed a needed service for the memory of the "Great Emancipator." He has written a volume which traces Lincoln's development as a man of letters from the early log-cabin days to the tragic closing of his great career. All the most recent accumulations of Lincolniana have been drawn upon for illustrative purposes. In a scholarly and authoritative way, Professor Robinson analyzes the outstanding letters, speeches and state documents that mark the various stages of Lincoln's progress to the presidency, and shows how Lincoln, as he became more and more a national figure, steadily grew in literary stature and in his ability to reach the mind and heart of the people.

Abraham Lincoln as a Man of Letters is the only book upon the literary phase of Lincoln's life and work. It is a book which should be in every high-school, college and public library in the country.

Blue Stars and Gold

By William E. Barton, D. D., LL. D.

THE war has come home to all of us. In hundreds of thousands of American homes, blue-starred service flags hang in the windows. In some homes, there is a gold star on the flag—placed there as a symbol for a valiant young life snuffed out in France. Whatever news may come from "over there," grief and heartache will come to many homes from which sons have gone forth who will not return.

Dr. Barton has written a book that addresses itself to the hearts of the men and women whose sons are fighting abroad. He tells what the war means to the folks at home—what compensations there are for the service and sacrifice which our country requires from us to-day. He tells us how to shoulder our burdens—in what spirit we should bear our part in the common struggle.

Blue Stars and Gold is a book that is written from the heart and to the heart. Those who are appalled by the magnitude of the struggle —who are lost in its mazes—will do well to read this cheering, helpful book—that through understanding may come comfort, and through a sharpened vision, an enlarged sense of the heroic struggle that is being waged by our country for human liberties.

Edgar A. Guest

EDGAR A. GUEST achieved national recognition with the publication of A Heap o' Livin' in 1916.

The American public was quick to recognize the advent of a new poet—a poet distinctively American—a poet who wrote songs of home, of children, of the everyday joys and sorrows, and of the numberless things about which the affection and sentiment of life cling.

A worthy successor to Riley and Field

There is nothing artificial about Edgar A. Guest's verse. There is no striving after the bizarre, the fantastic or the unreal. His poetry has the ring of genuineness, for it is based on a deep, abiding faith in human nature—in its essential goodness and lovableness.

Edgar A. Guest's poems are syndicated in over 60 of the great American dailies stretching from coast to coast. No other American poet is read so widely. Many thousands of readers look for Mr. Guest's poems in their favorite newspapers daily, and his name has become a household word in their homes.

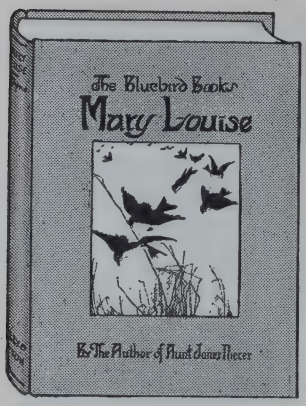
A Charming New Heroine



The Mary Louise Series

By Edith Van Dyne

The "Mary Louise Series" becomes more and more popular with every added volume. The author of "Aunt Jane's Nieces" has repeated the success of that universal favorite.

Girls' Books of Wide Appeal

MRS. VAN DYNE'S stories for girls have always had an appeal to older readers. Without being beyond the understanding of the girl of thirteen, they have nevertheless been as carefully planned and written as any novel. And the stories have not been too trivial for the girl of eighteen. Naturalness and humor and a genuine knowledge of girlhood is the secret of Mrs. Van Dyne's charm.

The new series bids fair to equal the success of the "Aunt Jane" stories. In the first volume Mary Louise is still a young girl, but the incidents which center about her will hold the interest of any reader. There is mystery and suspense and no little thrill. Mary Louise is a sympathetic character; girls of her own age will fall in love with her. There is no doubt that they will want to follow her through a good many volumes of stories as appealing as the initial title.

FOUR TITLES

1. Mary Louise.
2. Mary Louise in the Country.
3. Mary Louise Solves a Mystery.
4. Mary Louise and the Liberty Girls.

Illustrated 12mo. Jacket in color. Per volume, 75c net.

"These girls of story-book fame have won their way into the hearts of thousands of young readers."

The Aunt Jane's Nieces Series

By Edith Van Dyne

The Aunt Jane's Nieces Series is one of the three best-selling girls' series in the world.

TEN TITLES

1. Aunt Jane's Nieces
2. Aunt Jane's Nieces Abroad
3. Aunt Jane's Nieces at Millville
4. Aunt Jane's Nieces at Work
5. Aunt Jane's Nieces in Society
6. Aunt Jane's Nieces and Uncle John
7. Aunt Jane's Nieces on Vacation
8. Aunt Jane's Nieces on the Ranch
9. Aunt Jane's Nieces Out West
10. Aunt Jane's Nieces in the Red Cross

WITHOUT being sensational, Mrs. Van Dyne has succeeded in writing stories with the stir and tug of young blood in them. The Aunt Jane series appeals to young readers because the author neither tries to preach nor to "write down" to their youthful minds, but is satisfied to be natural and entertaining. The stories have a wealth of plot and action and the style is lightened with no little humor. Patsy and Beth and Louise are three girls of individuality and resourcefulness and they manage to get themselves involved in a good many exciting situations. They are just as resourceful in getting out of their various ambitious undertakings, but the doing is always attended with plenty of suspense and excitement.

"Written by one who evidently understands girls in all their moods and tenses."—Memphis News Scimitar.

OF "Azalea" the Chicago Tribune said: "The sort of book all the family will want to be reading at the same time." Of "Annie Laurie and Azalea" the Chicago News said: "Free from sickly sentimentality, and decidedly invigorating and wholesome." The new title is characterized by the same naturalness and vigor. No girls' story in years has met with a more cordial reception from reviewers, parents and girl readers, than that accorded the initial volumes of the Blue Ridge Series.

These are stories of the Blue Ridge Mountain country. Each is complete and individual, but each carries forward the fortunes of Azalea, a girl of personality and charm, now become the close friend of many readers. Plot, characters, setting, are alike interest-holding, but the greatest charm lies in the personality of the author shining through between the lines.

Worth-while books of permanent value; a series destined for long-continued popularity. Four titles:

1. Azalea.
2. Annie Laurie and Azalea.
3. Azalea at Sunset Gap.
4. Azalea's Silver Web.

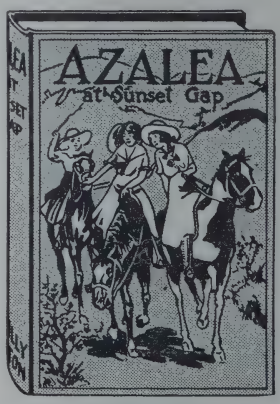
The fourth title, "Azalea's Silver Web," may be read by grown-ups with pleasure; it is as clean and worth-while and entertaining a story for the girl just passing into womanhood as a parent might desire.



Standard novel size. Bound in extra cloth, with attractive cover design in four stampings. Four artistic half-tone illustrations. Beautiful jacket in colors. Per copy, 60c net.

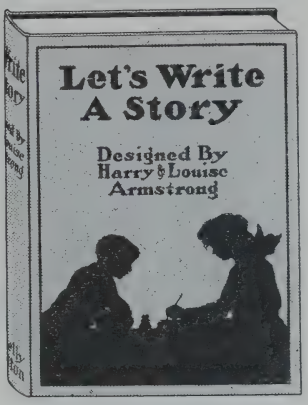
A Novel Idea in Childbook Construction

Let's Write A Story

Designed by
HARRY AND LOUISE ARMSTRONG

A novelty in child books that will appeal to modern parents—a book which provides "something to do" for the whole family.



THERE never has been a time when story-telling was so popular as it is today. In homes, in kindergartens, in schoolrooms, in Sunday school classes, progressive mothers and teachers use the story-form to hold the children's interest and to develop their imagination. Children love stories. At the mere mention of "a story," their little faces light up with pleasure and eagerness.

A book which holds out endless enjoyment to little folks

The designers of Let's Write A Story have prepared a book which will interest every child. Fifteen stories—the old-time favorites that children love to hear over and over again—are delightfully illustrated. After each illustration is the beginning of a sentence which furnishes the right cue to the little writer. After mother or father has told the story, the youthful writer simply takes up pen or pencil and writes his own fairy tale in the book by completing the sentences already started and filling in the blank lines on each page.

Let's Write A Story is endorsed by kindergarten teachers and leaders in primary education. It is a book that will have a wide sale. Every modern mother who wants to share in the education of her children will recognize the value of this ingenious volume.

Beautifully designed and printed; profusely illustrated; striking jacket printed in green; size 9 x 11½ inches.

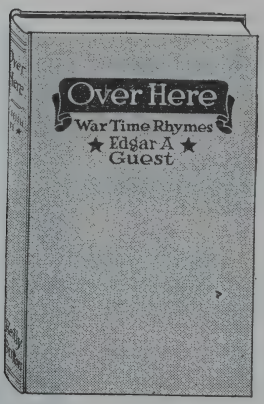
Verse



IT COULDN'T BE DONE

Somebody said that it couldn't be done,
But he with a chuckle replied
That "maybe it couldn't," but he would be one
Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried.
So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried he hid it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it!

Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that;
At least no one ever has done it";
But he took off his coat and he took off his hat,
And the first thing we knew he'd begun it.
With a lift of his chin and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting or quiddit,
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done,
There are thousands to prophesy failure;
There are thousands to point out to you one by one,
The dangers that wait to assail you.
But just buckle in with a bit of a grin,
Just take off your coat and go to it;
Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing
That "cannot be done," and you'll do it.

The Accountancy of Investment

By the late Charles E. Sprague, C.P.A., President, Union Dime Savings Bank, New York. Revised by Leroy L. Perrine, C.P.A. Third edition, 1914. 371 pages. 6 x 8¾. Half leather binding only. $5.00.

Thoroughly covers the calculations required in arriving at the returns on investments, and the recording of the financial amounts involved. In four parts: (1) The mathematics of investment, including all the calculations in connection with annuities, sinking funds, simple and compound interest, bond valuations, amortization schedules, loans, mortgages, etc.; (2) Problems illustrating such calculations in detail; (3) The use of ordinary and 12-place logarithms in investment calculations, with tables; and (4) 8-place tables of (a) Compound Interest, (b) Present Worth, (c) Amount of Annuity, (d) Present Worth of Annuity, (e) Sinking Funds. Arithmetical methods are followed throughout, making an extensive knowledge of higher mathematics unnecessary to understand the work.

Accounting Practice and Procedure

By A. Lowes Dickinson, C.P.A., member of the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Company. 3rd printing, 1916. 315 pages. 6 x 8¾. Cloth binding only. $3.00.

A guide to the best practice in handling some of the more important questions arising in advanced accounting, such as the application of correct principles in the preparation of the profit and loss account and the balance sheet, and the best accounting treatment of fixed property, investments, reserves, inventories, capital stock, bonded debt, contingent liabilities, repairs, renewals, depreciation, new construction, etc. The author discusses each question thoroughly, gives the different procedures advocated, comments on each, and states his opinions and conclusions. He also discusses some special points in connection with corporation accounting and finance, cost accounting and the duties and responsibilities of the public accountant. Mr. Dickinson is one of the most widely experienced men in the accounting profession, and his suggestions are exceedingly helpful in handling the problems covered.

Accounting: Theory and Practice

VOL. I.

By R. B. Kester, C.P.A., Instructor in Accounting, Columbia University School of Business. Students Edition. 4th printing, 1918. 607 pages. 6 x 8¾. Cloth. $3.00.

An excellent book for beginners in accounting. It gives a clear, unconfused grasp of the theory of accounting, the interrelation of the balance-sheet and profit and loss statement, the theory of debit and credit, and the general details of accounting work. Working back from the final accounting statements, the book explains how the work in ledgers and journals is carried out; how accounts are classified; business papers and their connection with accounting: and details of posting, taking off trial-balance, closing the books, locating errors; etc. The problems of partnership and corporation accounting are illustrated by examples. Any student who covers the book thoroughly should acquire from it an excellent conception of the theory and elementary practice of accounting.

VOL. II.

By R. B. Kester, C.P.A., Institute of Accounting, Columbia University School of Business. Students Edition. August, 1918. About 825 pages. 6 x 8¾. Cloth. $4.00.

This work comprises a thorough discussion of the balance sheet and profit and loss statement and the many problems connected with them, chief among which is that of valuation. In connection with this the question of depreciation is given very thorough treatment, more than 100 pages being devoted to it. The general principles of valuation and their detailed application to individual assets; valuation of capital stock; surplus; reserves; dividends; forms of statement; etc.—these are some of the questions discussed. Supplementary to these are a discussion of the corporate form of business, the voucher system, manufacturing accounts, mergers, consolidations, numbered accounts, accounts and reports in bankruptcy, adjustment of fire losses, branch and agency accounting, statistics in business, etc. The material designed to give practice in the application of principles is well thought out and admirably adapted to its purpose. This is the second volume of a three volume series on General Accounting which Mr. Kester is preparing. It can be studied profitably by anyone who has covered material presented in the first volume or who is otherwise well grounded in the fundamentals of bookkeeping.

Applied Theory of Accounts

Extended Bond Tables

By the late Charles E. Sprague, C.P.A., author of "The Accountancy of Investment," and "Philosophy of Accounts." Fourth edition. 1915. 233 pages. 4¾ x 8¼. Flexible leather. $6.00.

Gives (a) the rate of income a bond will yield at a certain price, or, (b) the price at which a bond will yield a certain annual income. While there are, of course, many sets of bond tables published, the distinctive features of these tables are their scope and accuracy. The results are carried out to 8 places of decimals, giving values accurate to the nearest cent in $1,000,000. While the rate of the ordinary tables varies by eighths and tenths of 1%, these read direct by twentieths of 1%, and if difference tables are used, by hundreths of 1%. The tables can be used for bonds ranging as to interest from 1¼% to 10% annually and running for periods extending from one-half year to 100 years. By means of special tables, quarterly or annual bonds may readily be reduced to semi-annual income basis. The tables may also be used as annuity tables.

The Financing of Public Service Corporations

By Milton B. Ignatius, L.L.M., of the New York Bar. Assistant to General Valuation Counsel, New York Central Lines; Formerly Statistician and Accountant, Public Service Commissions of New York. 1918. 508 pages. $5.00.

An exhaustive treatise designed as a guide to all phases of public service financing, and its regulation by the government. Mr. Ignatius brings to his treatment of the subject a precision of touch and clarity of style which add greatly to the exceedingly valuable information set forth. The manual discusses with evident mastery and at great length every detail of the four big branches of its subject. Part I, Corporations and Public Regulation: Part II, Capital Stocks: Part III, Funded Debt: Part IV, Capitalization. It is not just a general statement or discussion of the subject, but a decidedly authoritative, problem-solving guide for the corporation officer, the accountant, the banker, broker, and public official.

Getting the Most Out of Business

By E. St. Elmo Lewis. Second edition. 3rd printing, 1917. 483 pages. 6 x 8¾. Cloth binding only. $2.50.

Every page of this book makes a man stop and think. Mr. Lewis has been for years one of the representative figures among American business men—in close touch with the policies and methods of concerns like the Burroughs Adding Machine Company, the National Cash Register Company, the Art Metal Construction Company, etc., holding positions from Vice-President and General Manager down. He is a keen student of men and methods, policies and results, success and failure. In this book he gives hundreds of examples of these, and from them formulates a philosophy of business that is not only inspiring but sound in practice. Specific problems are discussed—advertising, selling organizations, management, handling of men, discipline, personal efficiency in getting things done. Business men in important positions all over the country have bought this book and cannot say too much for it.

Graphic Methods for Presenting Facts

By Willard C. Brinton. Special edition prepared for The Ronald Press Company by the Engineering Magazine Company. 1918. 371 pages. 7¼ x 10¼. Cloth. $5.00.

The use of graphic methods is one of the most fascinating subjects in the whole field of business planning and executive control. "Graphic Methods for Presenting Facts" shows how it is perfectly feasible to focus a whole business into graphic records so simple that a trained man could readily see all the important tendencies. It makes clear how charts are used in the analysis and control of business: it explains the various charting systems, and gives detailed instructions for preparing all kinds of charts. It makes clear how to study curves and draw conclusions from them. Accountants and executives generally will find this exhaustive manual of immense practical usefulness in their everyday work. Profusely illustrated with helpful charts, forms, etc. It is doubtful if there is a book published in any language covering the field which Mr. Brinton has treated so thoroughly in this work.

Hiring the Worker

By Roy Willmarth Kelley, Director of the Bureau of Vocational Guidance and Instructor in Education, Harvard University. Special edition prepared for The Ronald Press Company by the Engineering Magazine Company. March, 1918. 244 pages. 6 x 8¾. Cloth binding. $3.00.

A book designed for the man who employs others, whether he is directly responsible for the proper selection or accomplishes it through an employment manager. Based upon the experiences of thirty firms it presents a compilation of tested systems and methods of procedure. It treats of the organization of the employment department; the analysis of the job; the problem of selection; methods of initiating workers into their tasks, their transfer, promotion and discharge. It gives the training necessary, and discusses the qualifications advisable for the employment manager. It presents specimen blanks, record forms and employees' instruction booklets. It contains a complete bibliography of employment and relative subjects, with descriptions. It is a work from which will evolve efficiency and system in the conduct of the most important element of modern business—hiring the worker.

Indexing and Filing

By E. R. Hudders. Public Accountant; Member of the American Statistical Association. 4th printing, 1918. 304 pages. 5¾ x 8½. Cloth binding. $3.00.

A complete standard practice manual that has been badly needed. Nearly all published information on filing so far available either gives details for one special class of files, or simple broad information about the general system of files used. This book gathers the definite, specific information into one systematic volume for use in business offices. It explains the five basic systems of filing and where each can best be used, and explains in full each detail of filing work—the indexing, filing of cards, filing of papers, finding lost papers, transferring, grouping of records, filing of information and data, catalogues, purchase, sales and credit records, invoices, checks, vouchers, electrotypes and cuts, etc. There is a chapter that will be very helpful in the selection of filing equipment as needed, and illustrative chapters giving the full working details of files for three typical offices—lawyers, architects and accountants.

Influencing Men in Business

By Walter Dill Scott, Ph.D., Director, Bureau of Salesmanship Research, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Director Psychological Laboratory, Northwestern University. 3rd printing, 1917. 168 pages. 5 x 7¾. Cloth binding only. $1.50.

"Influencing Men in Business" shows how to develop the ability to influence men by mastering a few simple laws for influencing their minds. Long ago, business men turned to chemistry and physics for help in handling things. Now the most progressive leaders are turning to psychology for help in handling men. The author of this book is one of the leading practical psychologists of the country. For years he has studied, experimented and tested to find the practical applications of psychology to business. In the present book he explains the mental processes by which men think and are led to act. His statement of this is strictly scientific—authoritative as a manual of chemistry, yet so clear and practical that the business man can put its ideas to use the very day he reads it.

Principles of Salesmanship

By Harold Whitehead, Assistant Professor of Business Method, Boston University, Author of "The Rexall Course of Salesmanship." 1917. Trade Edition, 1918, containing additional material. Over 400 pages. 6 x 8¾. Cloth. $3.00.

A new book giving practical selling instruction in a series of lessons, each of which deals with a distinct phase of the subject. It takes up each detail of making the sale, illustrating it with interesting dialogues, and tests the reader's knowledge with specific questions whose answers develop clear, accurate thinking. It teaches how to prepare and deliver the selling talk—how to approach and handle the prospect—how to get and keep the buyer's good will—how to cultivate the characteristics a salesman must have. The practical application of the principles of salesmanship is further set forth in several sales talks or imaginative interviews, which are carefully analyzed so that the student can see how theory is put into practice. A strong feature of the book is the three concluding chapters in the Appendix which give much practical and detailed advice on how to get a job as a salesman. The experienced, successful salesman will read this book with interest and profit; the younger, ambitious salesman will find suggestions that he can profitably use; and the novice who puts into practice the clear, definite advice given in this book will save himself a whole lot of disappointents and set-backs in his chosen calling.

Salesmanship for Women

By Adelaide Benedict-Roche. Second edition. 1914. 137 pages. 5¼ x 7¼. Cloth binding only. $1.00.

Helpful and definite advice on the work of the canvassing saleswoman. Written especially for women, and contains much sound common-sense advice that is valuable to any one selling by soliciting. Mrs. Roche is herself a successful saleswoman, and was for many years in charge of sales forces of the Spirella Corset Company. The book covers the possibilities of salesmanship as a vocation for women, the qualifications needed, selecting the right article, creating the right first impression, preparing the selling talk, building up the sale, getting necessary licenses, etc.

THE RONALD PRESS COMPANY, NEW YORK

Scientific Circulation Management for Newspapers

By William R. Scott. 1915. 310 pages. 6 x 8¾. Cloth binding only. $2.00.

Circulation is the life blood of a newspaper and circulation management is a problem that requires initiative, executive ability and a study of successful newspaper circulation-building methods. This book gives facts, figures and methods of the best organizations in this country. A few of the important points covered are the principles of circulation management, relation between advertising and circulation revenue, details of the complete circulation methods of the Indianapolis "News," the building up of discipline and enthusiasm in the circulation department, and the use of special features, premiums, contests, etc., in circulation campaigns. INTERNATIONAL CRITICAL COM mentary on the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. Under the present editorship of The Rev. FRANCIS BROWN, D. D., L. Litt., L. L. D , and the Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, M. A., D. D., planned and for years edited by the late Prof. C. A. BRIGGS, D.D., in America, and Prof. S. R. DRIVER, D.D., and Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, D.D. in Great Britain.

This Commentary is international and inter-confessional, and is free from polemical and ecclesiastical bias. It is based upon a thorough critical study of the original texts of the Bible, and upon critical methods of interpretation. It is designed chiefly for students and clergymen, and will be written in a compact style. Historical and Archaeological questions, as well as questions of Biblical Theology, are included in the plan of the Commentary, but not Practical or Homiletical Exegesis. The volumes constitute a uniform series.

LUTHERAN COMMENTARY, THE.

By Scholars of the Lutheran Church in the United States, under the editorial charge of HENRY EYSTER JACOBS, D.D., LL.D. Is being published after extensive correspondence and consultation between the general editor and Lutheran scholars throughout the country. It comprises twelve volumes of about 400 pages each, and incorporates the text of the revised version. The work fills an intermediate position between scientific and popular exposition. It does not enter into the discussion of critical questions, but seeks to present results. It is adapted to the wants of pastors, and is especially valuable to intelligent laymen and Sunday-school teachers. 12mo, Each, 2.00

Travel, Description and Adventure

ALDRICH, MILDRED, (Author of "A Hilltop on the Marne")

On the Edge of the War Zone

From the Battle of the Marne to the Entrance of the Stars and Stripes

12mo. Portrait frontispiece in photogravure and other illustrations. Cloth, bound uniformly with the same author's "A Hilltop on the Marne" and "Told in a French Garden." Net, $1.35

MISS ALDRICH'S new book is the long-awaited continuation of "A Hilltop on the Marne." Like that charming volume it is a collection of letters written to a friend in America; the first is dated September 16, 1914, the last April 8, 1917. She tells what has happened from the day when the Germans were turned back almost at her very door to the never-to-be-forgotten moment when the news reached France that the United States had entered the war.

She had gone out to her quaint old French country-house in June, 1914, expecting that she had found a quiet haven where she could dwell in peace, with her books and writing, near the Paris that she loves so well. In less than three months the "miracle of the Marne" occurred within sight of her quiet hilltop.

Since then her experiences have been varied and interesting and, as they have been the experiences of the French people, her new book is essentially a portrayal — and a wonderful one — of France under the stress of war. You get vivid glimpses of the daily life of the people and their reaction to the war, how this or that family is affected by the departure or the return of son or husband, and how it seems to live month after month within sound of the guns booming forty miles away.

No longer is there any novelty about books that tell of life in the trenches; books about armies, battles and campaigns are common. There is, perhaps, no other book, however, that distills for the reader the whole spirit of France during three years of war; in this respect, among war books, "On the Edge of the War Zone" is unique.

BALDENSPERGER, PHILIP J.

The Immovable East: Studies of the People and Customs of Palestine

8vo. Cloth. With 24 full page illustrations and a map. Net, $2.00

THIS book is a particularly valuable addition to Palestinian literature, because it treats especially the life of the people and shows conclusively that, on account of their changelessness, the best aid to study of the Bible is to be found in the habits, customs, and thought of the Fellahin and Bedawin as we find them to-day. Mr. Baldensperger has for many years been known as an authority on the anthropology and folklore of Palestine.

"An invaluable record of the customs and habits of thought of a people who reflect in their family relations, their religious observances, and even in the turn of the common phrase upon their lips, a social order which goes back to the dawn of history as we find it depicted in the sacred writings of the Jews. A book of singular charm, the charm of unadorned veracity and of a sympathetic understanding of the conditions of existence in the hamlets of Syria." — London Times.

BARTLETT, ROBERT A., and RALPH T. HALE

The Last Voyage of the Karluk

Special holiday edition. 8vo. Cloth. Illustrated from charts and photographs. Handsomely boxed. Net, $2.50

THE Karluk was the flagship of Vilhjalmar Stefansson's Canadian Arctic Expedition of 1913–16 and was under the command of Captain Robert A. Bartlett, already famous as the master of Peary's ship, the Roosevelt, and as having reached a higher latitude (88° N.) than any other white man who ever lived, excepting only Peary himself.

In "The Last Voyage of the Karluk" is told the story of the ship's wonderful drift, of her sinking, of the life of her company in "Shipwreck Camp" many hundreds of miles out on the ice of the Arctic Ocean north of Bering Strait, of their journey to Wrangell Island, of Captain Bartlett's crossing to Siberia and his seven-hundred-mile walk with his young Eskimo companion to bring help to his marooned comrades — a story which Theodore Roosevelt says "demands the serious consideration of all who are interested in adventure and scientific work in the Far North. It is a very striking and interesting series of adventures."

Listed by the New York State Library as one of the hundred best books of the year.

"Told with much detail and in an interesting way." — A. L. A. Booklist.

"Arctic exploration narrative, having the same absorbing interest as Nansen's, Peary's, and Amundsen's. — Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

"One of the finest stories of life in the Arctic regions ever published. It is a swift, modestly told tale of heroic adventures, as attractive for youngsters as for the grown-ups to whom it is addressed." — The Independent.

"A volume that every lover of Arctic adventure must read."— The Outlook.

"Full of anecdote and adventure, nor are humor and fun wanting, and the good courage of the born explorer glows everywhere through its pages." — Chicago Evening Post.

"A wonderful tale." — New York Times.

BY VARIED HANDS

A REVISED reprint of the Special Irish Number of the London Times, presenting a comprehensive picture of the present condition of Ireland, without any reference to politics or subjects of immediate controversy. The main heads under which the subject is treated are, "The Country and the People," "Ireland in the Past," "Irish Art and Literature," "The State of Education," "The People and the Land," "Irish Products, Industries and Manufactures," "Railway and Water Communications" and "Sports and Pastimes."

CERVESATO, ARNALDO

The Roman Campagna

8vo. Cloth. With 407 illustrations. Net, $5.00

TO most visitors to Rome the name "Roman Campagna" suggests only the plain immediately around the city, but Signor Cervesato uses it in its wider sense to include the whole of the old "Latina Tellus" (the Latin Land), a territory which extends for more than 120 miles along the shore of the Mediterranean, with a superficial area of 1,245 square miles, and which includes the dry plain around Rome, the forest and marshland along the coast, and the surrounding hills, the first homes of the Latin tribes.

The book deals with the many aspects of the great fawn-colored plain, with the white consular roads that cross it, with its wild horses and buffaloes, its lakes, its villages, its churches, its cemeteries, and its historical associations.

"It will illuminate many a journey to Rome, will recall the past, and stimulate an intelligent knowledge of the present."—Saturday Review (London).

"The book is one to be read with keen interest, and one to which the reader will turn again and again after the first reading for the pleasure he found in its illustrations."— Living Age (Boston).

D'OLLONE, VICOMTE

"It is the most important contribution that has ever been made to our knowledge of the racial sources of the Chinese, and of the enclavement of primitive survivals." — Nation.

HALE, ALBERT

Practical Guide to Latin America

Including Mexico, Central America, the West Indies and South America. Preparation, Cost, Routes and Sightseeing.

16mo. Cloth. New and revised edition. With a map. Net, $1.25

THIS is the only book systematically to collect in one volume all the facts of travel to and through all the Latin-American countries. It has become the standard book on the subject.

The author is a well-known traveller, who has been a Special Compiler for the Pan American Union and United States Commercial Attaché in the Embassy at Buenos Ayres. "As the Bureau of the American Republics," says the Bulletin of that Bureau, "feels a certain degree of responsibility in the matter it hopes that the public will uphold its verdict of praise for this 'Practical Guide.' "

> "For a guide-book for the traveller," says the New York Evening Post in its Reader's Guide department, in response to many inquiries, "Albert Hale's 'Practical Guide to Latin America' has taken its place as the standard work."

JAMES, LIONEL

With the Conquered Turk: The Story of a Latter-day Adventurer

8vo. Cloth. With maps and illustrations from photographs and drawings. Net, $2.50

MAJOR LIONEL JAMES, Special Correspondent of the London Times with the Turkish Army in the Balkan War, author of "On the Heels of de Wet," etc., tells of the adventures of the English war correspondents with the Turks, "a book," says the Nation, "rich in nicknames, personal banter and light philosophy."

KNOWLES, JOSEPH

Alone in the Wilderness

12mo. Cloth. Illustrated from drawings on birch bark, made by the author in the woods with burnt sticks from his fires, together with photographs taken before and after his experiences. Net, $1.25

IN the belief that nature will always provide for her own, the author, a Boston artist, undertook to test his theory by going into an uninhabited part of the Maine woods and living alone for two months the life of a primitive man. Reaching the edge of civilization, he stripped himself of clothing, and without gun, knife, or implements of any kind, he stepped into the wilds one August day, to battle for his existence, depending on the woods themselves lo supply his every want. Two months later he came out on the Canadian border, warmly — but strangely — clad, and in a better physical condition than when he entered.

"'Alone in the Wilderness' makes remarkably interesting reading. The author appears to be an ardent lover of nature, and his experiment was to prove that nature is man's good friend that never betrays him. It certainly should teach one who gets lost in the woods how to get out and how to sustain himself until he does get out. The book describes an experiment that gives us much valuable knowledge." — Boston Transcript.

LAWTON, LANCELOT

The Empires of the Far East

8vo. Cloth. Boxed. Two volumes. Per set, net, $10.00

THIS is a study, by an English journalist and publicist, of Japan and her colonial possessions, of China and Manchuria, and of the political questions of Eastern Asia and the Pacific.

"More attention is given to Japan than to any other country because Japan is the only country in the Far East which is rated one of the world's powers, and because the Japanese are the dominating people in the Orient, directly concerned in every important policical, economical and social movement in their part of the world. . . . Next to Japan in the allotment of the author's space comes China. Of China's future he speaks with marked hopefulness; he says that, although it may be her lot to pass through tribulation, she is destined to emerge a strong and enlightened power, to take her place in the forefront of civilization." — New York Times.

"As a student of international relations, Mr. Lawton's ability is of the first order. Indeed there is hardly a topic discussed in the two volumes of which America can afford to be ignorant." — Literary Digest.

"Upon the whole this is a book about Japan, and as such it is of almost encyclopedic pretensions. In the fulness and freshness of its information we know of no other that can be compared with it. A book nearly indispensable for students." — New York Sun.

PACKARD, WINTHROP

WAVELL, A. J. B., F. R. G. S.

A Modern Pilgrim in Mecca and a Siege in Sanaa

8vo. Cloth. With map, portrait and other illustrations. Net, $3.00

THIS is the record of two journeys, one a pilgrimage to Mecca in 1908-9 when the author disguised himself as a faithful Mohammedan from Zanzibar, the second in 1911, when Mr. Wavell undertook what proved to be a still more difficult and dangerous feat — that of penetrating to the utterly unknown southwest corner of Arabia, called the Yemen, where he came upon a real war that is still going on between the Turks and Arabs, and about which the world knows nothing, though in 1911 alone the killed and wounded almost equalled those of the Boer War. In a remote city named Sanaa, then fiercely besieged by the Arabs, the author was virtually held prisoner for many months, until at last he made a desperate attempt to escape from the city, was recaptured, beaten, imprisoned and put on trial for his life by the Turkish authorities, finally escaping death by the favor of an enlightened official.

The author went to the front early in the Great War and was one of the first to fall.

"A successful pilgrimage to, and a safe return from, Mecca, combine to mark out the English visitor not only as a Hadji, but also as one worthy of being remembered together with certain other names not so numerous as to exhaust the fingers of one hand." — London Times.

"A story of some of the most daring personal exploits of our time and as full of information as of incidents." — Chicago Herald.

WHITTEN, WILFRED

A Londoner's London

12mo. Cloth. 24 illustrations by Frank L. Emanuel. Net, $2.00

"THE London of these pages," says the author in his preface, written appropriately enough from The Cock Tavern, Fleet Street, "is not the measureless town of guide books: that London on which even Horace Walpole began a book, only to faint and fail when he had written a few sheets; that London, which, still earlier, had been called a county covered with houses, a description which has passed from metaphor to fact. The Londoner's true London is smaller. It is the sum of his own tracks in the maze, the town in which, by hap, he has most often eaten his bread and thought his thoughts."

"A volume which commends itself almost equally to those who know London, to those who are planning to visit it and to those who must know it only through books." — Living Age.

BAKER, C. H. COLLINS

Lely and the Stuart Portrait Painters: A Study of English Portraiture before and after Van Dyck

Two volumes. Large Crown 4to. With 240 illustrations, of which eight are in color and the others in collotype. Of the edition of 375 numbered copies (350 only for sale), printed on special rag paper, for the Medici Society, of London, 50 are reserved for the United States.
Half-levant. Per set, net, $60.00

THOUGH many notable painters worked in England during the two centuries which separate Holbein from Hogarth, history had passed them by. Van Dyck, it is true, had been thoroughly studied, and the miniaturists somewhat less thoroughly; but our critical knowledge of the rest of this long and important sequence of artists had made but little advance since the days of Horace Walpole.

Starting with the first years of the seventeenth century, this work traces the course of painting in England through the whole of the Stuart period and ends only with the reign of George II. With the single exception of Van Dyck, intentionally omitted as already studied, every notable portrait painter of this long epoch is carefully studied, beginning with Marc Gheraedts and Paul von Somer and ending with Sir Godfrey Kneller and Michael Dahl, a period, roughly, from 1603 to 1723. Chronological lists of authentic works are given in each case, and the appendices contain all that is known of numerous painters hitherto unrecognized.

More than a hundred collections, including the finest private galleries of England, have, by the courtesy of their owners, been made available for study.

CESARE, O. E.

✠ One Hundred Cartoons by Cesare

4to. Boards. Net, $3.00

EDITION DE LUXE, limited to 105 copies, printed on Japan Vellum, numbered, and signed by the artist. Net, $7.50

BRILLIANT and powerful interpretations of our times by the artist whose change from the New York Sun to the New York Evening Post gave the latter newspaper opportunity to congratulate itself on its good fortune, when for the first time in its history it decided to add a cartoonist to its regular staff, in being able to announce that it had obtained the services of the ablest cartoonist in America, a cartoonist whose work measured up to the highest standards of technique.

Whether dealing with politics or war, social subjects, humorous situations, portraits, Cesare is always an artist; he is known as such throughout this country, while his work is reprinted in European periodicals more often than that of any other American cartoonist.

His drawings have been characterized as expressing "the point of view that seeks not merely pleasantness or decorativeness or the suggestion of a sympathetic anecdote, but rather the sincere representation of life as seen by men of character, humor and insight."

His work satisfies to the utmost the definition of the difference — so often not clearly understood — between the cartoon and the caricature: the caricature merely makes you laugh, the cartoon makes you think.

The majority of the drawings in the present volume were suggested by the Great War. The preservation in permanent form of such cartoons, for instance, as that on the sinking of the Lusitania — the most famous American pictorial expression of that great tragedy — or that on the death of Lord Kitchener or those on Mr. Wilson's first Secretary of State, to mention only a few, will be appreciated by the thousands of Cesare enthusiasts.

"Every American interested in the art of the cartoon cannot but find this collection of more than temporary interest. Aside from a splendid technique, Cesare is possessed of a poetic fervor, imagination and a keen feeling for beauty. Many of these are drawings of a very noble order, qualified by a sentiment that is not mawkish. Because of his power as much as his fine restraint, Cesare may be said to be an aristocrat among American cartoonists."— Dial.

"This book is one of the rare ones of drawings by artists published in America and it is of drawings by a rare artist among Americans. The one hundred drawings in the book are reproduced exceptionally well." — Arts and Decoration.

Jan Vermeer of Delft

4to. With reproductions in color, in photogravure and in half tone of all of Vermeer's known works, together with examples of the work of some of his contemporaries. Boxed. Library buckram. Net, $10.00
Half-levant. Net, $20.00

THIS is the first book in the English language treating of Jan Vermeer of Delft and his exquisite art. Mr. Hale, who is a son of the late Dr. Edward Everett Hale, is himself an artist with a high place among American painters, and he brings to his task a lifetime's devotion to the study of Vermeer and his work.

Vermeer, who was born in Delft in 1632 and died there in 1675, is held by artists generally as not only the greatest Dutch painter but also as the most accomplished painter of all time. Highly esteemed in his own day, he was somehow forgotten after his death and his pictures were attributed to Vermeer of Haarlem, to Vermeer of Utrecht, to Pieter de Hooch and others, so that it was not until a time comparatively recent that through the instrumentality of the French connoisseur Thoré his real identity was discovered. Since that time he has come into his own. Altogether some thirty-seven pictures are now with certainty assigned to Vermeer of Delft, of which eight are in the United States, all but one in private hands.

"A solid and satisfying work, solid, because of its discriminative and exhaustive inquiry regarding the technical aspects of the great Dutch painter's art; satisfactory, because of its literary excellence and sympathetic interpretatations. It is a book to be placed on the same shelf with Sir Joshua Reynolds's 'Discourses,' Fromentin's 'Holland Painters,' and the 'Velasquez' of R. A. M. Stevenson. The definitive study."— JAMES HUNEKER, in the New York Sun.

"The most elaborate stylistic analysis ever applied to any artist."— Nation.

ment, thought and mystery in art. A notable and unique work. Of the 106 beautiful illustrations in half-tone and photogravure, sixty-seven reproduce Rodin's work." — A. L. A. Booklist.

"In this book, which I am pretending to review, M. Gsell appears as Rodin's Boswell and reports very intelligently a number of remarkable practical observations made by Rodin. They are practical even when they deal with the most mystical recesses of art. For Rodin, like all great workmen who can express themselves in words, is very straight and simple, and disposed to be useful to those who listen to them, and not to waste their time. He knows what is important and what is not and what can be taught and what cannot." — GEORGE BERNARD SHAW in the New York Times.

"An excellent translation. It is one of the rare books on art which set forth the ideas of a great mind, and therefore add to the store of the world's literature on this subject a contribution of permanent value." — Boston Transcript.

"It is well worth having since its enjoyment will not be limited to only those knowing art."—Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

RUTTER, FRANK

The Wallace Collection

Small 12mo. Cloth. Net, 75 cents

A HANDBOOK which aims at presenting in a popular form the results of the most recent researches into the history of some of the principal art treasures in the Wallace Collection, researches which have made possible the identification of many purchases and the correction of certain attributions.

The author is the Curator of the Leeds City Art Gallery, "and his book," says the Bookman (London), "is likely to become the most popular of all guides to the glorious palace of art in the West of London. It is an introduction to the great arts of beauty, written out of an experience of a lifetime. It gives its readers new points of view in the appreciation of the masters of art. It is, in short, an education in art, as well as a guide-book, possessing a literary value of its own, independent of the wealth of information it imparts."

Dutch Genre Paintings and Landscapes; VI. Eighteenth-Century Paintings in France and England; VII. Modern French Paintings; VIII. Bronzes and Sculpture; IX. French Furniture; X. Porcelain; XI. Leonardo da Vinci: The Florentine Years of Leonardo and Verrocchio

Large 4to. With 277 illustrations, many of them in tint.
Library buckram. Net, $12.00
Half-levant. Net, $24.00

IT was not until recently that the manuscripts of Leonardo da Vinci became an object of research and study. One reason for this was the difficulty they presented through being written from right to left. The glimpses that the investigator obtained, brief as they were, showed the great artist as one of the most richly endowed human beings that ever lived. Slowly the mass of ascriptions has been reduced, and picture after picture attributed to the master has been proved to be spurious. In the Uffizi Gallery, for instance, of 42 drawings bearing Leonardo's name Dr. Thiis finds only seven genuine. Forgers, copyists, pupils, imitators — all have contributed to swell the stream of Leonardo's reputed pictures. Dr. Thiis has devoted many years to the study of the work of the artist, his master, Verrocchio, and his contemporaries, with the result that he writes of the Florentine Period with the authority of thorough knowledge. He has enriched his text with nearly 300 illustrations, a large number of them being in double tints so as more nearly to resemble the originals.

"Dr. Thiis's great work has many claims on the student and amateur. . . . It is inexhaustibly suggestive and instructive." — New York Evening Post.

"It is not too much to speak of it as a definitive book upon its subject for it is difficult to see in what way it could be improved upon." — Town and Country.

"A deeply interesting monograph. The reproductions, especially of the numerous drawings, are irreproachable." — International Studio.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

ARCHER, WILLIAM

✠ Play-Making: A Manual of Craftsmanship

8vo. Cloth. Net, $2.00

"A BOOK of practical suggestion for the student of play-writing," says the A. L. A. Booklist, "the work of perhaps the ablest English dramatic critic. The principles underlying play construction are fully discussed and illustrated for the most part from plays now to be seen, from Shakespeare and Ibsen to Clyde Fitch and Brieux. Considered by several American students of the drama the best work dealing with the modern stage."

"I make bold to say," says Brander Matthews, Professor of Dramatic Literature in Columbia University, "that Mr. Archer's is the best book that has yet been written in our language, or in any other, on the art and science of play-making.

"He tells the ardent aspirant how to choose his themes; how to master the difficult art of exposition — that is, how to make his first act clear; how to arouse curiosity for what is to follow; how to hang up the interrogation mark of expectancy; how to combine, as he goes on, tension and suspension; how to preserve probability and to achieve logic of construction; how to attain climax and to avoid anti-climax; and how to bring his play to a close.

"Mr. Archer's book is an invaluable and an inspiring manual."

> "This book has long been desired, and there is no man in the world better equipped to write it. Students of the drama may derive from this treatise a sane reckoning of where the truth of dramatic art lies. Further, it is admirably what its title claims for it, and should be of genuine value to the playwright. Not often may we find a subject so well and comprehensively discussed." — Bookman.
> "It is, moreover, as suggestive to the play-goer as to the play-maker." —Boston Transcript.
> "Every minister who does not remember his homiletics should read this book. It would cheer him by seeing the difficulties of his profession reappearing on a stage instead of in a pulpit. How interest is to be aroused and held, how anti-climaxes are to be avoided or utilized, the part that chance and logic and suspense play in a play — these all are adequately dealt with, and will give the minister many a useful suggestion." — Record of Christian Work.

The list of chapters:

Book I: Prologue. I. Introductory; II. The Choice of a Theme; III. Dramatic and Undramatic; IV. The Routine of Composition; V. Dramatis Personae.

ARCHER, WILLIAM (Continued)

Detailed descriptions of the Beacon Biographies Series arranged by authors

BRADY, CYRUS TOWNSEND

⑨Stephen Decatur

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a portrait by Sully. Net. 60 cents

STEPHEN DECATUR was the most conspicuous figure in the naval history of the United States for the hundred years between Paul Jones and Farragut. Unlike most of the early naval captains, whose fame rests on a single battle, Decatur was a hero in at least three of our early wars. He represented, too, those qualities which we consider peculiarly American. The present biography not only gives a view of the man as he appeared to his contemporaries, but also exhibits, in some measure, the national life and habit of thought and action during the time in which he lived.

BARNES, JAMES

⑨David G. Farragut

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a photograph taken in 1865, by Bogardus, New York. Net, 60 cents

"THE book must take its place as the best short sketch of Farragut's life yet written. Indeed, the historian of the future will have a difficult matter before him if he expects to improve on this commendable piece of work." — National Gazette.

BURROUGHS, JOHN

④⑥John James Audubon

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a painting by George P. A. Healy, London, 1838, owned by the Boston Society of Natural History. Net, 60 cents

A VOLUME which possesses double charm in its subject and in its author. No more picturesque life can be found among the pioneers of America than that of the great ornithologist. A brief sketch of his life has long been desired. And it would be difficult to find an author better fitted to inspire interest, or to give a more appreciative estimate of Audubon's contribution to science and to America. It is widely used for schools; for example, it has been recommended for purchase for all school libraries by the Rural School Education Extension department of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University.

BURTON, RICHARD

⑦ John Greenleaf Whittier

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece after a crayon portrait by Charles A. Barry. Net, 60 cents

THE aim of the biographer has been to tell straightforwardly the quiet but attractive story of Whittier's life. He has sought to give its salient events in such a manner that the essential characteristics of the man might be brought out, and his qualities as an author thereby explained. Such estimates of Whittier's poetry have been given as shall make plain his development of character, and explain his position in American literature.

CARPENTER, GEORGE RICE

Henry W. Longfellow

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from an engraving, by J. A. J. Wilcox, of a crayon portrait by Lawrence in 1854 Net, 60 cents

THE previous narratives of Longfellow's life have been written by his immediate contemporaries, who have told us of the poet as they knew him in the fifties and sixties. The aim of this volume, by the late professor of English in Columbia University, has been to judge the poet and his career from the viewpoint of the later time which judges his poems as they live after him.

CHAMBERLIN, JOSEPH EDGAR

John Brown

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a photograph of a daguerreotype which is supposed to have been taken in Kansas in 1856. Net, 60 cents

"IF the young American were to be given one book and one only by which to form a faithful idea of John Brown, this is by all odds the one which ought to be read. He tells the story simply, vividly, with a sympathy sincere and unmistakable, yet not obtrusive. The volume in its brief compass is a wonderfully perfect example of the art of the biographer." — Boston Journal.

"A model of brief biography, at once straightforward and picturesque." — The Critic.

CHESNUTT, CHARLES W.

Frederick Douglass

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a photograph by J. H. Kent, Rochester, New York, one of the last taken of Mr. Douglass. Net, 60 cents THOROUGHLY in sympathy with every step of Douglass's upward career, Mr. Chesnutt presents the main episodes of his life with a great deal of warmth and ardor and perfect understanding. The story of his wonderful career could not be better told in this brief way than by Mr. Chesnutt, whose racial sympathies help him to see and feel most deeply the inmost thoughts of the great colored orator." — Boston Herald.

"Mr. Chesnutt probably has come nearer to the real man than any one who has described him." — Literary News.

CLYMER, W. B. SHUBRICK

James Fenimore Cooper

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece after an engraving of a daguerreotype taken by Brady in 1850. Net, 60 cents

A SINCERE and admirable life of the earliest American novelist still popularly read to-day — for Charles Brockden Brown is, of course, a name that means little to twentieth century readers — and an intensely interesting life was Cooper's. His expulsion from Yale College in 1805, his adventures when a midshipman in the navy, his lasting contributions to the literature of the English language, and the many lawsuits for libel which he himself conducted so successfully against the newspapers are all events which influenced him as a man. He had great strength of character, and consequently made many enemies, who criticised him severely and unjustly. Irving, on reading "The Pathfinder," said of him, "They may say what they will of Cooper: the man who wrote this book is not only a great man, but a good man."

COPELAND, CHARLES TOWNSEND

Edwin Booth

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a copy of a photograph taken in 1890 by Mr. Ignatius Grossmann, Booth's son-in-law. Net, 60 cents

"THE reader's mind is kept in vital touch with the real formative influences that shaped the life and career of Edwin Booth. Inheritance, native traits, self-training, struggle with poverty, contact with coarse and brutal as well as with refined audiences, domestic bereavements, conflagration and bankruptcy, heroic struggle to pay off a mountain-load of debt, ever-deepening conceptions of dramatic art, the 'tediousness of final constant success,' — of all these nothing is overlooked, but all so condensed and interlocked as to lead up to and justify the final summary, 'He was a great actor, a good Christian, a brave and much tried man.' " — Boston Herald.

"AN admirable book, full of spirit and enthusiasm, as all good biographies are, and also full of discriminating criticism, as but few good biographies are. No career of our Revolutionary epoch has the same brilliancy as Hamilton's. Born in a little island in the Caribbean Sea, this 'waif of greatness' was at nineteen a commander in the Revolutionary Army; at twenty-three the close friend of Washington; at thirty the chief author of the 'Federalist' essays; at thirty-two Secretary of the Treasury; and for the next five years, under Washington, the dominant personality in the political life in America." — The Outlook.

One of his works was the founding of the Paulist Fathers. No one can intelligently understand the great movements which are now going on in the Catholic Church without first understanding something about Father Hecker's work and the influence which, even after his death, his memory is inspiring." — Chicago Herald.

never soiled; one of the few who, from first to last, worked for country and for fellow-man. I have had no space for his speculative opinions, for his political theories, for his daring suggestions in science, mechanical arts, education and state socialism. It has been my purpose to steer clear of the controversial and to follow the plain road of fact." —From the Author's Preface.

WHITLOCK, BRAND

Abraham Lincoln

④24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a photograph made by S. M. Fassett of Chicago in 1859. Net, 60 cents

 Also published in a larger and illustrated edition, corrected and printed from new plates. 12mo. Cloth. 210 pages. Net, $1.25

"MR. WHITLOCK'S book," says Miss Ida M. Tarbell, "is far and away the best brief account of Lincoln that I have ever read. It is sufficiently comprehensive, and it is sympathetic and intelligent. He seems to me to have mastered his material very well and to have compressed an immense amount of the real feeling and flavor of Lincoln into comparatively few pages. I am constantly being asked for an interesting short life of Lincoln, and this is the first time that I have come across one that I take entire satisfaction in recommending."

WISTER, OWEN

Ulysses S. Grant

24mo. Cloth. With a photogravure frontispiece from a photograph taken in 1865 by H. F. Warren and now in the collection of the Bostonian Society in Boston. Net, 50 cents

"THIS is a most admirable biography," says Henry Cabot Lodge. "Within the space allotted to him, Mr. Wister has given a most striking picture of the man himself. It required much art to draw on such a limited canvas so vivid a portrait. All the essential features are there, thrown into high relief, and it will give to many who have not the time to read larger works an opportunity to comprehend the character and qualities of the great soldier of the Civil War."

"It seems to me the very best short biography which has ever been written of any prominent American," says Theodore Roosevelt. "A masterpiece of eloquent condensation, without the slightest sacrifice of historical perspective. It is noble in manner and noble in matter."

ATTERIDGE, A. HILLIARD

Famous Modern Battles

8vo. Cloth. With thirty battle plans by the author. Net, $2.00

ONE of the most popular works of history is Sir Edward S. Creasy's "The Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World," which still stands unrivaled in its field. In one respect, however, for the twentieth-century reader, Creasy's book is lacking: it ends with the Battle of Waterloo. In the century that intervened between that famous victory and the outbreak of the European War, many momentous battles were fought of more interest to the present-day generation than many of the decisive battles of antiquity described by Creasy.

Captain Atteridge's book admirably fills this great gap. The battles of which it treats are:

I. The Battle of the Alma, September 20, 1854; II. Solferino, June 24, 1859; III. Chancellorsville, May 1 and 2, 1863; IV. Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863; V. Sadowa, July 3, 1866; VI. Rezonville and Gravelotte, August 16 and 18, 1870; VII. Sedan, September 1, 1870; VIII. The Great Assault on Plevna, September 11, 1877; IX. Tel-el-Kebir, September 13, 1882; X. Adowa, March 1, 1896; XI. The Battle before Santiago (El Caney and San Juan), July 1, 1898; XII. Omdurman, September 2, 1898; XIII. Paardeberg, February 18, 1900; XIV. Mukden, February 20-March 9, 1905; XV. Lule Burgas, October 29-31, 1912.

"A book that is worthy to be set beside Creasy." — Cincinnati Enquirer

"A very thrilling account of fifteen modern battles, free both from overcoloring and from military technicalities which might bewilder a layman." Literary Digest.

FULLER, LOÏE

Fifteen Years of a Dancer's Life. With an Introduction by Anatole France

8vo. Cloth. Profusely illustrated from photographs. Net, $2.50

A PICTURESQUE, anecdotal and entertaining narrative of the dramatic events in the life of the American girl who became one of the most famous dancers in the world. It shows the author in a charming light, not only as a serious artist but as the beloved and respected friend of the great artists and authors of France. For, in addition to being a great dancer, Miss Fuller possesses a fine personality and a keen mind.

As M. Anatole France says of her in the introduction which he has contributed to the volume:

"She is marvellously intelligent. But she has a still more marvellous soul. Rich in all natural gifts, she would have made a great scholar. I have heard her discourse most comprehensively of astronomy, chemistry and physiology. But that is of slight consequence. Above all she is an artist."

GRETTON, R. H.

A Modern History of the English People: Volume I, 1880–1898. Volume II, 1898–1910

8vo. Per set, two volumes, net, $6.00

A MAN of affairs is most keenly interested in the personalities and events of his own day. His first curiosity about the history of the past is in the form of questionings about what immediately led up to the present. What chain of events brought about this or that present-day political or social situation? When did this or that tendency in business begin? What has been the past career of this public man — how did he reach his present point of view?

The beginning of any historical reading, therefore, might well be the history of the generation and the times just past, without a knowledge of which it is obviously impossible for anyone to be a competent judge of the affairs, political, social, and commercial, of his own day.

Mr. Gretton has approached his subject from this standpoint. He has written a history peculiarly expressive of all that the word "modern" implies. The modern student of affairs no longer restricts his interests to the Court, politics, and society. He is interested as well in science, technology, commerce, music, the theatre, art. The modern newspaper and magazine reflect this variety of interests and provide for it; here for the first time a formal history also reflects it and provides for it.

"This is a brilliant book. There is not a dull page in it; the author lives over again these thirty years in a spirit of vivacity and with a freshness of touch and comment which carries the reader along; and there are pages which belong to literature." — London Times.

"It would be hard to find a more vivid picture of England than is given in these two moderate-sized volumes." — Living Age.

LEGGE, EDWARD

More About King Edward

8vo. Cloth. Illustrated from photographs. Net, $4.00

"'MY son may reign, but my grandson never will!' With these words, said to have been uttered by the late King on his death-bed, Mr. Legge opens the first chapter of 'More About King Edward.' Considering the fact that Mr. Legge has already written a book about England's beloved sovereign, it seems marvellous that he should find so much material for a new volume, but this one will, in my opinion, have a wide appeal in our own country, where King Edward was highly esteemed for his good sense, his sportsmanlike qualities and his friendly attitude toward Americans." — JAMES L. FORD in the New York Herald.

"There is not a dull page in the book. It is full of touches which reveal the character of a king, witty, debonair and wise, whose equal in statesmanship and strength of character the author claims can only be found in the person of Queen Elizabeth." — Literary Digest.

MILLS, CHARLES E. and LOUIS A. HOLMAN

Scenes from the Life of Benjamin Franklin

4to. Boards. Illustrated. Net, $2.00

REPRODUCTIONS of the ten paintings by Charles E. Mills in the Franklin Union, Boston, with text, historical and explanatory, by Louis A. Holman. The paintings which form the subject of this volume constitute the frieze in the entrance hall of the Franklin Union, in Franklin's native town, Boston. They are of remarkable historical accuracy, the result of six years' careful research on the part of the painter, and Mr. Holman's descriptive and explanatory text is admirably informative.

Not a little interest is added to the book by the account of the way in which the Franklin Union came into being as the result of the growth of a fund of a thousand pounds, left to Boston by Benjamin Franklin one hundred years before.

WINDHAM, WILLIAM

Windham Papers, The

8vo. Cloth. Two volumes. With two portraits in photogravure and 32 other illustrations. Boxed. Net, $10.00

Being the Life and Correspondence of the Rt. Hon. William Windham (1750–1810), a member of Pitt's first cabinet and the ministry of "all the talents," including hitherto unpublished letters from George III, the Dukes of York and Gloucester, Pitt, Fox, Burke, Canning, Lords Minto, Castlereagh, Grenville, Nelson and Malone, Doctor Johnson, Cobbett, Doctor Burney, etc. With an introduction by the Rt. Hon. the EARL of ROSEBERY, K. G., K. T.

ALTHOUGH more than a hundred years have passed since his death, no biography has appeared of William Windham, whom Lord Rosebery describes as "the finest English gentleman of his own or perhaps any age." This is the more strange inasmuch as he has been the subject of more panegyrics than any other man of his time. Friends and foes alike honored and loved him, and both have eagerly sung his praises. He was the intimate of Johnson, Burke and Fox, and the political associate of Pitt, the Duke of Portland and Lord Grenville. He was a favorite with the king and the beloved of Malone. Jeffrey had a good word for him. Brougham could not speak too highly of him, and Fanny Burney exhausted her superlatives in describing him. Years later Macaulay summed up the general opinion of Windham's contemporaries and of succeeding generations by calling him "high-souled Windham."

"William Windham is one of the few English statesmen of the late eighteenth century whose life should appeal to American readers, for his first appearance as a public speaker was at a meeting called to raise a subscription toward the cost of the American War, a project which he stoutly opposed. His other claims on the notice of the general reader include the fact that he was at Eton with Fox, was the intimate friend and pupil of Burke, and had such close relations with Dr. Johnson that he was one of the few who watched by his bedside to the last." — Boston Transcript.

" 'The Windham Papers' throw new light on the relations between England and France during the French Revolution." — American Historical Review.

Selling Latin America: A Problem in International Salesmanship — What to Sell and How to Sell It.

12mo. Cloth. With 4 maps and 19 illustrations. Net, $2.00

MR. AUGHINBAUGH has lived and sold goods for eighteen years in the countries of Latin America. He knows these countries as a man knows his own town. He knows the people, their habits, their characteristics, and their commercial practices. He knows what they will buy, what they will not buy; how to sell to them, how to finance the transaction, how to ship, bill, and collect. He tells in "Selling Latin America," country by country, all the essential and fundamental things without a knowledge of which successful trading in the countries to the south of us is impracticable and impossible—methods of doing business, the salesman and the customer, custom-houses and tariffs, trade-marks, finance and credits, packing and shipping, advertising, reciprocity, health precautions.

"Selling Latin America," is in the Selected List of 200 Books on Advertising, Merchandising and Selling, distributed by the Library Division, Educational Committee, Advertising Club of New York.

"The very fact that it is by W. E. Aughinbaugh should be a sufficient reason for its being authoritative and dependable, for he certainly has had an unusual experience in studying the business conditions of those countries." — JOHN BARRETT, Director General, Pan American Union, Washington.

"A very useful book, full of just the information about South and Central American countries that I want and that everyone seeking Latin American trade should regard as indispensable." — E. F. SWEET, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Washington.

"I have purchased and read 'SELLING LATIN AMERICA.' I want to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation of that piece of work. It is the most understandable presentation of the much mixed subject of Latin American trade that I have read." — DONALD FROTHINGHAM, Manager Foreign Trade Department, American Express Company, New York.

"I have read 'SELLING LATIN AMERICA' with very great interest and advantage. It is a clear and lucid presentation of conditions, manifestly made by a very close observer and student of the same, who had come closely in contact with the matters described. It is a very valuable contribution to the literature upon that subject, presented at a very opportune time." — A. BARTON HEPBURN, Chairman of the Board, The Chase National Bank, New York.

In a foreword the author gives suggestions regarding the use of the stories.

President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University, Honorary President of the American Federation for Sex Hygiene, says: "'At the Fountain-head' will be useful to parents and teachers who have decided to give information on sex hygiene to the children in their charge. The interest in its subject is keen and widespread among thoughtful people."

⑥⑩ Little Beasts of Field and Wood

12mo. Cloth. With 24 illustrations by the author. Net, $1.25

"A RECORD of the author's personal observations of the life of small wild creatures. He goes minutely into their habits, their food, their manner of obtaining it, their houses, and the like. He tells a thousand interesting things about these little beasts, which the casual observer does not see or know, and which makes them of much greater interest. There could be hardly anything better calculated to train a child's power of observation, and to inspire him with a healthy and intelligent interest in natural life." — The Advance.

DALCROZE, EMILE JAQUES-

The Eurhythmics of Emile Jaques-Dalcroze

With an introductory chapter by Professor M. E. Sadler, C. B., LL.D. (Columbia), Vice Chancellor of the University of Leeds

8vo. Cloth. Illustrated from photographs. Net, $1.25

THE main features of Eurhythmics, the system devised by Monsieur Jaques-Dalcroze which has so captured the attention of educators, are two. Its primary object is to create by the help of rhythm a rapid and regular current of communication between brain and body; by developing the pupil's attention and will power and by eliminating all but the most essential muscular movements, so that an automatic technique, as it were, is created, the whole physical system is to be firmly, swiftly and almost unconsciously controlled by the brain in response to the dictates of musical rhythm. The second stage consists of interpreting musical rhythms and eventually complete compositions by a language of gesture and bodily movement, ordinary music being in this way given plastic expression.

"All who are interested in education should read this book. To teachers of music in particular, it will prove of real value. . . . It is a great advance upon most of the existing methods of musical teaching. . . . it might be introduced into our schools with benefit to the next generation." — Westminister Gazette (London).

"Many people besides those specially interested in teaching will find these principles suggestive and stimulating." — New York Times.

OSBORNE, WILLIAM HAMILTON (Author of "The Boomerang," etc.)

How To Make Your Will

Small 12mo. Boards. Net, 50 cents

WHEN there is no will, the law of the state steps in and, without reference to your unspoken wishes or the needs of those whom you may have left behind, determines exactly how what you leave shall be apportioned. The law is inflexible and applies the same methods to all cases. The wise and proper thing to do is to make a will and the less you have to leave the more essential it is that you do make a will, in order that as little as possible of your estate may be diverted from your heirs by the expenses incident to court procedure.

In the belief that the great mass of the public did not realize these things or understand how simple it is to make a will, Mr. William Hamilton Osborne, of the New York bar, who is eminent alike as a novelist and as a lawyer, has written this brief and very readable little book.

He demonstrates the necessity in clear and unmistakable language, gives the correct forms, and cites cases of rare interest to show the advisability—and the simplicity—of action. He also discusses the matter of who shall be your executor, and takes up the advantages of trust companies for that purpose. Altogether his book is a well-rounded and really interesting treatment of the subject.

①⑥③⑪⑫ The Land We Live In

With an Introduction by GIFFORD PINCHOT

8vo. Cloth. With 136 illustrations from photographs. Net, $1.50

BOY SCOUT EDITION

"INTERESTING, authoritative discussion of our forests, lands, waters, minerals, and wild life, pointing out the necessity of preserving them and how the reader may cooperate. Both its information and 136 unusual fine photographs will attract readers of all ages." — New York State Library — Best Books.

Mr. Pinchot, in a statement given out when the United States entered the war against Germany, said: "There is no better book on Conservation than Overton Price's The Land We Live In. It is a direct and authoritative statement, written in a simple, accurate, and interesting way. Every American who reads it, old or young, will know what his country's resources really are, how they are used and abused, how they ought to be used and conserved, and how vitally necessary it is at this time above all others to make 'the land we live in' do its full share in the great task of winning this war of civilization against barbarism, democracy against tyranny, right against wrong.

"We must make our land produce more food than it has ever produced before. In the fulfillment of this great task, the patriotism that counts is the patriotism that is founded on intelligent understanding of the whole country and of its resources. The Land We Live In is the best means I know to get such understanding."

DAVIS, PHILIP, assisted by GRACE KROLL

Street-Land: Its Little People and Big Problems

12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. Net, $1.50

WHAT shall we do with the children whose only place for play is the city street? Mr. Davis, who is the director of the Civic Service House, in Boston, was for five years Supervisor of Licensed Minors for the Boston School Board. He has observed closely, conscientiously and sympathetically, and handles this vital question from every angle. The subjects of employment of minors as street vendors, public playgrounds, amusements of the street, boys' clubs, theatres and "movies," and many other important phases of child life in street-land are dealt with, carefully and concretely.

> "With sympathetic carefulness, Mr. Davis studies a problem becoming more and more difficult, as the cities of our republic grow larger. As one witnesses the increasing lawlessness of the children in the street, comes over and over again the question: 'What can be done to keep them off the street?' This question — one of vast national significance — Mr. Davis answers. His book cannot but stimulate the movement to provide a safer and more attractive environment for city children. It makes a valuable addition to the Welfare Series of volumes, dealing primarily with to-day's problems of human well-being, each written from a different standpoint, and each authoritative upon its particular subject." — Boston Transcript.

gestions of ways in which persons of means, time and talent, and resourceful organizations of the community, can have a share in the work.

One of the objects of this book is to answer the universal question of the volunteer social worker: "Just what can I do in social work and how shall I go about it?"

This book is widely used as a text book for social service.

"Here we have, brought into the compass of a single volume of about 400 pages, the best thought of the day concerning current types and fields of social service. Scarcely an avenue of beneficent effort has been overlooked.

"Community problems — housing, fire prevention, recreation, immigration and industrialism — are here elaborately stated and intelligently discussed by experts; and so are child labor, educational agencies, prison reform and sanitation.

"Social problems; community questions; aspects of child life: remedial agencies — under these main heads the scheme of informative discussion is presented and carried out. Thus the book is made a textbook and mentor for volunteers in the unending tasks of social service.

"It is these volunteer workers to whom the volume directly and potentially appeals. For all such high souls, this social service manual and counselor will prove a firm and helpful friend." — Philadelphia North American.

"It anybody is asking what he can do in social work and how he shall go about it he will find his answer in this volume." — New York Times.

"The book will be useful in accomplishing the purpose of its editors and contributors to explain to the potential allies in a community what the social workers are doing." — The Survey.

HAWES, JOHN B., 2nd, M. D.

✠†Consumption: What it is and what to do about it

12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. New Edition, revised and enlarged. Net, $1.00

A SUCCINCT account of tuberculosis, particularly pulmonary tuberculosis or consumption, with special consideration of the fact that it is first of all a human problem. The author, an Instructor in Medicine in the Harvard Medical School, is an eminent specialist in the disease and holds various important posts in connection with its treatment, such as director of the tuberculosis department of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Secretary of the Massachusetts Tuberculosis Commission, Secretary of the tuberculosis section of the Massachusetts Medical Society, etc. His book is designed especially for laymen, and will prove of the greatest value to everyone who wants to know the very latest thought on the practical as well as the medical treatment of consumption. It is a volume which encourages the patient to cooperate with the physician in the procedure of treatment by showing him how to help himself.

"Inexpensive little book written from the patient's standpoint. Besides simple descriptions of the disease and sensible directions as to prevention and care, it gives information on various sanatoria and consumptive resorts, with details as to transportation and living costs, and discusses after-occupation, marriage and other topics. — A. L. A. Booklist.

"Differs from Otis' 'Great White Plague' in being written more from the standpoint of the patient than that of public health. Discusses the problems that arise with regard to local vs. sanatorium treatment, marriage, the financial question, and after-occupation, as well as the more familiar matters of diet, contagion, etc." — Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

"Practical discussions of the problems of paying bills, whether consumptives should marry, consumptive parents and children; suggestions of how consumptives may show consideration for others, sick and well, — all are so frankly and convincingly presented that a reader cannot but accept the challenge of the final chapter. That is, be cheery, 'talk happiness,' be of good courage to the utmost power of your will. And, in this most vital matter of all, the author succeeds in making you want to hope, and really believe you can." — Survey.

"This book ought to meet a most general need. We shall make every effort to draw it to the attention of our nurses and nursing organizations." —American Red Cross Town and Country Nursing Service.

"I consider Dr. Hawes' book one of the best of its kind which I have read, not only because of its practicability and sound advice to the patient, but because of its value in helping to establish the right sort of relation between the physician and patient. It is a book, too, which should be of the utmost assistance to social workers, public health nurses, and all others who come into close contact with the class of people who most need this kind of advice and instruction." — Allan J. McLaughlin, M. D., Commissioner Massachusetts State Department of Health.

"The book is admirable. It covers the field of practical advice for patients who cannot go far away from home — a field that is not filled by other books. The directions in reference to health resorts are very valuable, as are those regarding sanatoria, and they are practical. Dr. Hawes writes for a class of patients who must consider expense and time of absence from occupation, or who, for various reasons, cannot change their occupation or residence permanently, and he gives them valuable encouragement. I shall be glad to recommend the book to patients who come under my observation." — Dr. Edward R. Baldwin, Saranac Lake, N. Y.

✠†*One More Chance: An Experiment in Human Salvage

12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.50

HUMAN documents from the experiences of a probation officer in the successful application of the probation system to the problems of men and women who without it would have been permanently lost to useful citizenship. "One More Chance" belongs on the same shelf as Harold Begbie's "Twice Born Men."

"The true stories told in 'One More Chance' are more interesting than the majority of the plots used in fiction. The one who has written it has a fine gift of characterization which makes live men of the examples and officials who dealt with them." — New York Sun.

"The accounts of individual criminals, with their confessions and their subsequent careers, are some of the most vivid stories ever written. And they are true; nothing is changed except the names of the offenders. As a living document of human endeavor and failure and success it will be found of absorbing interest." — Boston Transcript.

"A very valuable book on the probation system. It is very concise in the fact that it deals in a very concrete way with the problem of the probation officer. When I give my course again on Criminology and Penology I plan to require this book.

"I wish to congratulate you on the splendid Welfare Series. This makes the second book in that series that I have found useful for my work here. The other is Davis's 'The Field of Social Service,' which I am using for the text in my course entitled 'Methods of Social Service.'"—J. L. GILLIN, Secretary, Department of General Information and Welfare, University of Wisconsin.

BRANDEIS, LOUIS D.

Business — A Profession

With a Foreword by ERNEST POOLE

8vo. Cloth. Portrait in photogravure. Net, $2.00

NEW Americans in recent years have profoundly affected so many of their fellow citizens from so many different angles as has Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, who had already won national fame as "The People's Lawyer" before he was made Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. Unhampered by selfish interests or desires, Mr. Brandeis has solved in a new way problems that have puzzled men and bred distrust and discontent for decades. These problems in the last analysis have been found to be involved in the conduct of business, and Mr. Brandeis has been successful in dealing with them because he has dealt with business as based on what he calls "the inexorable law of arithmetic" on the one hand, and humanity on the other.

"Business — A Profession" is a collection of his most important public utterances on the subjects with which he has been most conspicuously identified. It offers his fellow citizens a unique opportunity to understand the mind and heart of one of the most interesting of Americans.

"Business — A Profession" is in the Selected List of 200 Books on Advertising, Merchandising and Selling, distributed by the Library Division, Educational Committee, Advertising Club of New York.

"'Business — A Profession' does not merely give opinions. It gives facts and draws conclusions.

"In the essay which gives the volume its name Mr. Brandeis asserts that business is becoming a profession. It no longer means getting the best of the other fellow. There are some interesting facts in connection with the insurance business which everyone should know."—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

"In these addresses and articles there is a uniform philosophy of life and practice of equity, with standards raised just above but not out of reach of the average citizen.

"Real success in business, it is urged, 'is to be found in achievements comparable with those of the artist or the scientist, of the inventor or the statesman. The joys sought in the profession of business must be like their joys, and not the mere vulgar satisfaction experienced in the acquisition of money.'

"From this high platform of business artistry Mr. Brandeis consistently and persistently proclaims the truth as he sees and apprehends it."—Philadelphia North American.

CARLETON, WILLIAM

✠③⑧One Way Out: A Middle-Class New-Englander Emigrates to America

12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.25

IN this remarkable narrative a man tells simply but with dynamic power, how at thirty-eight he lost his position in the office of a big corporation; how he learned that the special training of his own office was of no value in getting him a position in any other office; how at thirty-eight he was already "too old" to get such a position as he had found easily enough at eighteen; how he and his wife and boy, in their trim little suburban home, were actually confronted with the fundamental problem of how to exist; how he met and solved that problem in a way unexpected and dramatic, though to him and his wonderful wife, Ruth, obvious and natural, by "emigrating" to America; and how in all their struggle they found their lives enriched and inspired by the old adventurous, pioneer spirit of their forefathers. Few books have had so vital a place in the lives of the men and women who have read it.

"A really notable brief for democrary that everybody ought to read." — Nation.

"Of extreme interest because of its detailed study of actual conditions and of value for its suggestiveness." — A. L. A. Booklist.

✠③New Lives for Old

12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.25

"THE author of 'One Way Out' buys a farm and encounters in the New England country village conditions which set him to thinking and working along new lines. His original methods and enthusiasm awaken the dead village and through co-operation, friendly rivalry and expert advice the land which had been only furnishing a miserable existence to its shiftless owners becomes a source of good living and steady income." — A. L. A. Booklist.

"Will do more good than all the general articles and books that can be written or speeches that can be made," says Professor John Lee Coulter, Expert Special Agent in charge of the Division of Agriculture of the Census Bureau.

The Red Geranium, together with The Case of Mathews and My Son

12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.35

IN "The Red Geranium" Mr. Carleton tells how a woman suddenly bereft of her husband wins a competence for herself and her family through her courageous use of her one talent, an ability to make plants grow, a talent first brought home to her by Carleton's observing her skill at fostering a pitiful little tenement-house geranium.

In "My Son," which won a remarkable success as a serial in The Country Gentleman, he tells, with a significant contrast in "The Case of Mathews", how a young man, in this case his own boy, Dick, can win success by thinking for himself. Dick decided to marry and buy a farm in Brewster. The big problem in Brewster was the pure milk problem, and Dick tackled that, sanely and without faddishness. He proved that practical, horse-sense treatment of the big problem is not inconsistent with ideals, and that both bring business success.

The book is a valuable contribution to the solution of "the milk question."

The human appeal of the book is vital.

DEMING, SEYMOUR

A Message to the Middle Class

12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.00

AN appeal for sanity and logical thinking on the part of the great body of those who are included neither in the class of capital nor in that of labor.

"Whether you mean well and have your doubts, or whether you are quite confident that Providence must carry all the responsibility for prevailing social and economic conditions, you should read Seymour Deming's little book, 'A Message to the Middle Class.' It may disturb your complacence, it may challenge your Americanism, it may clear up some uncertainties, it may strengthen your resolution. It will take but an hour or two, and is worth while. — Independent.

"A scholarly-brotherly attempt intellectually to bridge the gap of misunderstanding between the actively muddle-headed radicals and the statically muddle-headed conservatives of the nation, interesting to all watchers of the social creative-evolution drama." — Life.

From Doomsday to Kingdom Come

12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.00

A PRESENTATION of the meaning of the developments of the past quarter-century in the world's progress, with special reference to the United States; a real interpretation of the bearing of the Great War on the present and the future of mankind. The author's pungent and epigrammatic style makes everything he says stimulating.

"He continues preaching the strongest, straightest and truest Socialist Gospel. We hereby advise every Socialist that we can reach to supply himself with Deming's books. They are vast arsenals from which to draw information and argument and, if we mistake not, will become a part of the permanent literature of the world, for in addition to knowledge Deming is a past master of literary style and diction." — JOSHUA WANHOPE in New York Call.

The Pillar of Fire: A Profane Baccalaureate

12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.00

THE author addresses a hypothetical graduating class for the purpose of opening their eyes to certain things which baccalaureate sermons habitually omit.

"A pillar of flaming rhetoric, surely. The writer is a man, who, seated among his sable-stoled fellows, was welcomed into 'the fellowship of educated men,' in solemn if trite academic ritual which even to this novice on the threshold of reality seemed a bit out of keeping. Now, after a post-graduate course in the University of Things-as-They-Are, he presents the baccalaureate which he would like to have heard and which, he is convinced, he was entitled to hear.

"What is a university but the treasure-house of the stored radicalism of the ages! If not to break rules, to shatter precedents, carve new paths, dare uncharted seas, and upset the existing order, then what in the name of revolution is education?

"Reduced to definite terms, what the author desires is an educational system designed to learn what is wrong with the world, and the remedy, what poverty is, why it exists, how it may be eliminated. He would have our universities deal concretely with the high cost of living, with industrial injustice; he would have them emphasize the glory of self-sacrifice, and inspire the passion for service to mankind. But even under the present system the author recommends the sending of boys to college. The student is adjured to remember that he is receiving class culture at the expense of the laboring classes." — New York Evening Post.

RELIGION, PHILOSOPHY, AND PSYCHICAL RESEARCH

CARRINGTON, HEREWARD

The Coming Science

12mo. Cloth. Net, $2.00

THE aim of this popular book on psychical research is threefold: (1) To form an introduction to the study of the subject; (2) to approach the baffling questions from the standpoint of physical science; (3) to summarize the various explanatory theories that have been advanced from time to time to explain the facts of psychical research. After reading it, the inquirer may feel that he has progressed a long way in their comprehension.

> "The great importance of the book lies in its pointing out that materialism must ultimately triumph, if no facts can be brought forward to prove it erroneous, and this would mean the destruction of the religious consciousness of the age. It is of prime importance, therefore, that the 'average reader,' if there is such a thing, should be properly introduced to the problems of 'The Coming Science,'" — Boston Transcript.

Problems of Philosophy

8vo. Cloth. Net, $5.00

THIS is Professor Hyslop's greatest contribution to the science of pure reasoning. His philosophy is altogether antagonistic to agnosticism. He has demonstrated, as he believes, that the independent existence of matter, space, time, the soul and God may finally be proved. In particular he repudiates the aristocratic and transcendental philosophy of Kant and Hegel and their followers, and substitutes a simple, systematic and easily intelligible scheme which combines the scientific methods of Comte and Herbert Spencer in a unique endeavor to create the first complete critique since Kant.

SEEKING for comfort in a great sorrow, the editor obtained personal statements of opinion as to a future life from some of the world's most eminent scientific men and thinkers.

"Meanwhile what are we to do? To inquire, to criticise, to discover, but also to live — to live this life here and now: aided thereto, it may be, by a laboriously acquired certainty that it is only an interlude in a more splendid drama."

POETRY

BRAITHWAITE, WILLIAM STANLEY

The Poetic Year for 1916: A Critical Anthology

Large 12mo. Boards. Net, $2.00

HERE is a book that is actually "something new under the sun" and, furthermore, "fills a long-felt want." Any lover of poetry, any student of contemporary literature, who desires to form an intelligent estimate of recent poetry, or to make an acquaintance with any individual poet of our time sufficiently definite to give him the requisite knowledge for an intelligent discussion, will find the book indispensable.

The method of the book is not the least of its virtues. A friendly discussion takes place among a group of four friends, including Mr. Braithwaite himself, who provides the guiding hand. They are fortunate in their surroundings, Laurel Farm among the foothills of the White Mountains; often their discussions take place in a delightful grove surrounded by all the beauties of nature. In such a setting they engage in many an illuminating verbal tournament over the merits of free verse, the poetic tendencies of our day, the work of this, that or the other poet, supporting their several contentions by liberal quotation.

By this lively treatment, so surprisingly different from the usual method of critical writing, the reader forms a personal impression, as human as it is well-founded, of the poetry of Bliss Carman, Walter de la Mare, Lizette Woodworth Reese, John Masefield, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Edgar Lee Masters, Louis Untermeyer, Amelia Josephine Burr, Amy Lowell, Ruth Comfort Mitchell, James Oppenheim, James Stephens, Josephine Preston Peabody, Alan Seeger, Robert W. Service, Sir Rabindranath Tagore, William Butler Yeats, Louis Ledoux, and many others — nearly seventy in all.

The anthologies published during the year are also discussed, among them Mr. Braithwaite's own "Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1916," an annual which, now in its fifth year, has done more, perhaps, than any other publication to stimulate respectful interest in poetic accomplishment.

"The Poetic Year for 1916" will be welcomed by librarians and will be found especially useful for women's clubs.

BRAITHWAITE, WILLIAM STANLEY, Editor

Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1917

12mo. Boards. Net, $2.00

THIS is the fifth volume in Mr. Braithwaite's series of anthologies of magazine verse which began in 1913 and has had a valuable part in stimulating and defining the American poetical accomplishment of recent years. Mr. Braithwaite regards the present volume as the most remarkable of the series, because the year 1917 has been conspicuous for the excellence of its poetic achievement.

"The examination of the year in the field of magazine verse," he says, "has brought forth the richest harvest of my experience in this work. Fifty per cent of the poetry published in book form of the better quality is now printed in the magazines, and this fifty per cent represents the best work of the poets."

Besides nearly three hundred pages of poetry, the volume contains valuable bibliographies and a biographical index, the whole prefaced by the editor's critical introduction. It is a distinguished volume, rich in service to American literature.

The Book of Elizabethan Verse. With an Introduction by Thomas Wentworth Higginson

Echoes from Vagabondia

16mo. Paper boards. Net, $1.00
Limp leather. Net, $1.75

"ALMOST all book lovers in this country treasure on their shelves the three books of vagabond poems which Bliss Carman and Richard Hovey wrote together. Mine, I confess, have been kept close to my hand that I might be at any moment reminded of roads that were not pavements and of joys that were not urban. If I felt any fear in opening this new volume that the old lyric delight had passed from Carman this apprehension was quickly dispelled. He never seemed more spontaneous, never younger — nor older — nor more satisfying. No affectation has crept in to mar his perfect lucidity of style.

"He has preserved that as religiously as he has his joy in nature and in freedom, and his verse flows to its old-time happy rhythm." — Chicago Tribune.

Low Tide on Grand-Pre: A Book of Lyrics; together with Ballads of Lost Haven: A Book of the Sea

12mo. Strathmore Japan Boards. Net, $1.50

MR. CARMAN'S two earliest books contain much of the work which gained him his most appreciative recognition from the critics, and many of these poems are worthy to endure with the best poetry of his generation. They are here presented in one volume.

" 'Ballads of Lost Haven' is a hundred pages of salt sea without a trace of Kipling, and yet having a sea-flavor as unmistakable as his, and with a finer touch, — with less of repetition, less of mere technicality, and a more varied human interest." — The Nation.

A Winter Holiday

16mo. Paper boards. Cover design in silver by T. B. Meteyard.

Net, 75 cents

"OF the seven poems making up the collection, five directly reflect the warm, many-colored experiences of the Bahamas. The two other pieces, 'December in Scituate' and 'Winter at Tortoise Shell,' depict in sharp contrast, yet with equal charm, New England winter scenes indoors and out. They show that this poet's remarkable gift for nature-description is as much in evidence when dealing with winter's monochromes as when moved by all the vibrancy and bloom of the full summer tide." — RICHARD BURTON, in The Saturday Evening Post.

CARMAN, BLISS, AND RICHARD HOVEY

Songs from Vagabondia

16mo. Paper boards. Cover and end papers designed by T. B. Meteyard. Net, $1.00

"A BOOK full of the rapture of the open air and the open road, of the wayside tavern bench, the April weather, and the 'manly love of comrades.' The charm and interest of the book consist in the real, frank jollity of mood and manner, the gypsy freedom, the intimate, natural happiness of these marching, drinking, fighting, and loving songs. They proclaim a blithe, sane and hearty Bohemianism in the opening lines." — London Athenaeum.

"Between the close covers of this narrow book there are some fifty-odd pages of good verse that Bobby Burns would have shouted at his plough to see and Elia Lamb would have praised in immortal essays." — New York Times.

"The authors of the small joint volume called 'Songs from Vagabondia' have an unmistakable right to the name of poet. These little snatches have the spirit of a gypsy Omar Khayyam. They have always careless verve, and often careless felicity; they are masculine and rough, as roving songs should be. You have the whole spirit of the book in such an unforgettable little lyric as 'In the House of Idiedaily,' " — FRANCIS THOMPSON, in Merry England.

More Songs from Vagabondia

16mo. Paper boards. Cover and end papers designed by T. B. Meteyard. Net, $1.00

"HOW long is it since another volume appeared so packed with high spirits and good humor? Certainly not since the original 'Songs from Vagabondia' came out. The poetry fairly bubbles over, — even over into the inside of the covers, where some verses are enshrined in drawings. It is a book that makes the reader young again." — Buffalo Express.

"Hail to the poets! Good poets! Real poets! . . . They are the free, untrammelled songs of men who sing because their hearts are full of music and they have their own way of singing, too." — New York Times.

"The pulsing of warm, youthful blood, the joy of living and comradeship are enclosed between the covers of 'More Songs from Vagabondia.' The poems are full of exuberant vitality, with a fine and energetic rhythm." — The Argonaut.

Last Songs from Vagabondia

16mo. Paper boards. Cover and end papers designed by T. B. Meteyard. Net, $1.00

THIS third collection makes a fitting close to the fresh and exhilarating poetry of the two preceding volumes of the series. It contains, in addition to verses set aside for this purpose by both authors prior to Mr. Hovey's death, certain later poems by Mr. Carman, reminiscent of his friend and fellow-vagabond.

"All the qualities of the earlier Vagabondia lays are embodied in these 'Last Songs,' — the riches of Vagabondia — love and youth and comradeship — and the glamour of the great world unexplored — nor is the joy in living absent, only softened to a soberer tone. Both Mr. Carman and Mr. Hovey have perfect command of the lyric form, both the power to imprison in richly colored verse a complete expression of the wander-spirit." — Boston Transcript.

"One finds in this volume the breadth of view, the spontaneous joy, the unexpected outlook, and the felicity of touch which betray the true poet." — The Outlook.

CARR, ROBERT V.

✠Cowboy Lyrics: Roundup Edition

12mo. Cloth. Frontispiece. Net, $1.25

"THESE poems present the cowboy more truthfully than we find him in the mass of western stories and show that the author has been a part of the life of which he sings. His pictures of the western country are reminiscent of 'The Virginian' and will interest readers far from the cowboy's trail." — A. L. A. Booklist.

"The vital difference between the cowboy songs of Robert Carr and the majority of the western lyrics is that these songs so veritably breathe the winds of the prairies, and the far vast places, the camp fires and the cattle ranging, the beauty and the wonder combined with the sadness and the hardships. They possess the reticence which is the seal of truth." — Boston Transcript.

CAVALCANTI, GUIDO

The Sonnets and Ballate of Guido Cavalcanti: Rendered into English Verse by Ezra Pound; With an Introduction by the Translator

8vo. Paper boards. Japan Vellum back. Net, $2.00

"EZRA POUND has done a service to literature by introducing to the English-reading public so admirable and so neglected a poet as Dante's contemporary, referred to in the 'Purgatorio':

> 'Thus hath one Guido from the other reft
> The glory of the tongue.'

COLUM, PADRAIC and EDWARD J. O'BRIEN, Editors

✠ Poems of the Irish Revolutionary Brotherhood

16mo. Paper boards. Illustrated, net, $1.00

A COLLECTION of the principal poems, mostly of a patriotic nature, by Thomas MacDonagh, P. H. Pearse (Padraic MacPiarais), Joseph Mary Plunkett and Sir Roger Casement, leaders of the Irish insurrection of 1916, all four of whom were executed, with a biographical and historical introduction by Padraic Colum.

"These verses come to readers fragrant not of the lamp, but of swords and blood, of age-long yearnings and battle, however brief; of rebellion, of prison, of death. . . . They are more Irish than Yeats and Hyde and Mangan ever were, and they pale in their fierce unity even the passionate native faith of so Celtic a poet as Lionel Johnson, whose 'Ways of War' is used as a prologue to the book." — Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

"The martyr bards will live forever in the affections of the Irish people and Ireland will honor their memory. Mr. Colum knew all the poets intimately and his account of their careers, aims and ideals is authentic and sympathetic." — The Gaelic American.
